1 background contained in this paragraph?

2 A. From counsel.

3 Q. So that's what you were told by counsel?

4 A. Yes.

5 Q. At Greenberg?

6 A. Yes.

7 Q. Do you recall who told you that?

8 A. I think Cameron. I'm not sure.

9 Q. Okay. Did you do anything to verify the 10 information that you were told contained in paragraph
11 one, the background on American?

12 MR. NELSON: Objection;
13 mischaracterizes.

14 THE WITNESS: No.

15 BY MR. REED:

16 Q. Okay. So you can offer no testimony as to what
17 American has done, for instance, to protect its flag
18 fair schedule and inventory data, can you?

19 A. No, I can't.

20 Q. You don't have any knowledge as to what
21 American has done to trademark its name and flight
22 symbol, do you?

23 A. Correct.

24 Q. You don't have any knowledge, other than what

1 you were told by counsel, as to measures American has
2 taken to ensure only its authorized agents are
3 permitted to act on its behalf?

4 A. Correct.

5 Q. The next paragraph you began talking about
6 Skiplagged, correct?

7 A. Yes.

8 Q. And this background on Skiplagged, where did
9 you obtain this information?

10 A. Let me review the paragraph.

11 (Reviewing document.)

12 I think it says in the first paragraph,
13 having reviewed the complaint and various screenshots
14 of American and Skiplagged's websites.

15 So I'm not sure what else are you
16 asking me about.

17 Q. Well, I'm asking what you did to investigate or 18 get this information contained in your background. So
19 one, you looked at the Skiplagged Website?

20 A. Correct.

21 Q. Okay. Do you recall when you viewed it?

22 A. A few times. First, I read the complaint and 23 then probably subsequent to this once or twice.

24 Q. So you believe you've viewed the website once

1 Q. You were told by counsel that that was a
2 violation of those contracts and you believed it and
3 assumed it, right?

4 A. Right.

5 Q. But you have no independent knowledge of 6 whether other agents of American sharing data on 7 American flights is a violation of their contract, do
8 you?

9 A. I don't.

10 Q. You go on to say that "Skiplagged developed
11 computer programs to obtain this information from 12 American's website."

13 That's something that you were told by 14 counsel?

15 A. Everything in this section by background I was 16 told by counsel.

17 Q. Okay. And you did nothing to verify whether 18 Skiplagged has a computer program to obtain
19 information from American's website, did you?

20 A. Correct. Because I say no need to verify
21 anything that counsel told me.

22 Q. You assumed it was correct?

23 A. Correct.

24 Q. You go on to say "Skiplagged.com allows users

1 A. Correct.

2 Q. Okay. And that is reflected in what you were
3 trying to evaluate in the previous paragraph, right?

4 A. Correct.

5 Q. Prior to or in the process of designing your 6 experiments, did you consult any treatises, scholarly
7 article, any other authorities to aid in your design?

8 A. No. The same answer as I gave you with respect
9 to the time period for respondents. I've done
10 thousands of studies. I've taught marketing research.
11 I don't have to go and look for, you know, help from 12 books on the topic. I wrote the books on the topic.

13 Q. Okay. What are the requirements for designing
14 a consumer experiment?

15 A. As I said, I conducted thousands of studies,
16 evaluated tens of thousands of studies. I know how to 17 design studies. That's a straightforward study to 18 assess confusion and to determine if there is any 19 deception or not.

20 Q. I understand you've done it for quite some 21 time. My question is a little different.

22 As part of your experience, is there
23 any requirements when you're designing a consumer
24 experiment?

1 ask a similar question. They may be dumb. They may
2 be brilliant. Probably in the dumb area, I bet.

3 All right. Earlier you said just a
4 minute ago that you chose Expedia as the control
5 group?

6 A. Correct.

7 Q. Okay. Now, you chose Expedia because why?

8 A. Because Expedia is a legitimate authorized
9 agent of American Airlines.

10 Q. And how did you know that?

11 A. From counsel.

12 Q. Okay. So you were told Expedia was an 13 authorized agent?

14 A. Correct.

15 Q. Were you given a selection of authorized agents
16 to choose from?

17 A. I asked about Expedia. I was looking for a
18 control group that would be a legitimate authorized
19 agent that most people use. I was familiar with 20 Expedia and I asked for verification of authorized
21 agent, and when I was told that yes, I decided to use
22 them as a control.

23 Q. Did you consider any others for the control
24 group?

1 A. I don't recall. I'm sure I did at the time. I
2 don't recall what they were. I was thinking about
3 trying to look for the best example for this. And I
4 thought Expedia would be the one. And then I checked
5 and I found out that they are, and I used them in the 6 control.

7 Q. What criteria did you use to find them as the 8 best example?

9 A. Well-know, market share.

10 Q. And why did they need to be well-known?

11 A. Because we wanted something that people are 12 familiar with. They are not going to select some 13 unknown control. I wanted a clear marker which would 14 allow me to compare the Skiplagged responses to and I
15 wanted unambiguously recognized travel agent.

16 Q. Okay. And what kind of market share was your 17 criteria?

18 A. I don't recall.

19 Q. You didn't have a certain percentage or?

20 A. I don't recall.

21 Q. Now, on page 9, kind of before that section on 22 universe and sample. You have that paragraph that
23 starts, "Expedia was chosen."

24 A. Yeah.

1 Q. Are you with me?

2 A. Yes.

3 Q. All right. You said the next sentence, you
4 say, "The interpretation of the difference between the
5 test and control groups is that the closer the results
6 for Skiplagged are to those of Expedia, the greater
7 the perceived confusion and deception."

8 Did I read that correctly?

9 A. Correct.

10 Q. Okay. So those people like me, without a
11 Ph.D., does that mean that more the consumer thinks
12 Skiplagged is like Expedia, the more confused they 13 are?

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. Because Expedia is an authorized agent and 16 Skiplagged is not?

17 A. Yes.

18 Q. Okay.

19 A. On the question -- with respect to this 20 dimension. It all depends on the specific question.
21 So a confusion would be, let's go and be complete.

22 (Reviewing document.)

23 So in the questions I read you before,
24 question 7A, would you believe the relationship

1 agent?

2 A. Correct.

3 Q. Okay. So the Expedia people weren't asked
4 about Skiplagged, were they?

5 A. Correct.

6 Q. Okay.

7 A. They were shown -- everything goes back to the 8 stimuli. So the Skiplagged ticket people, the first
9 column, so the stimuli, which was the Skiplagged
10 website, basically the screenshot from the Skiplagged
11 screenshot, the people in the Expedia saw the 12 screenshots of the Expedia corresponding information,
13 and so in the other one. And all of these stimuli are 14 included in Appendix C2, and also as part of C4, which 15 are the screenshot of the program questionnaire.

16 Q. Okay. And so you're saying that because 17 43 percent is similar to 56 percent, then there was 18 confusion?

19 MR. NELSON: Objection;
20 mischaracterizes.

21 THE WITNESS: Yeah. Fundamentally, as
22 a laymen person, yes. That basically you would 23 expect -- the truth is, we know the truth, they 24 are not recognized as the authorized agent. So

1 the correct answer would have been zero.

2 BY MR. REED:

3 Q. Okay.

4 A. Instead we find that 43 percent of the people
5 are confused. So to me the fact, what I need to 6 decide is 43 confused or not. So the benchmark to 7 compare it to, the control, which is 56 percent, and
8 saying it's pretty similar to this, and, therefore, I
9 can conclude, quite conclusively, plus the other
10 evidence I have. Because we're not relying on this
11 one question. That they basically, the Skiplagged
12 website, deceives consumers to believe that they are 13 associated with American.

14 Q. Okay. Now, the Expedia one, we're assuming 15 that Expedia is an authorized agent of the airline.
16 How do you account for 43, 44 percent of those people
17 being wrong?

18 A. They don't know. They don't know. They're 19 wrong. There is no way of accounting for those. We 20 know the answer. We know that 14.2 percent of them
21 knew they are not authorized agent, which is wrong in 22 their case. We know that 15.5 percent say there is 23 some other relationship between them and 14 percent
24 said don't stop. These are the responses.

I. BACKGROUND AND OBJECTIVES

A. Background

For decades, American Airlines, Inc. (“American” or “AA”) has been using its federally registered trade name and trademark “American Airlines” and its registered flight symbol design (collectively, the “American Marks”) to promote its products and services throughout the world.

American carefully protects its flight, fare, schedule, and inventory data and content by providing this information only to its authorized agents, and by taking measures to ensure that only authorized agents of American are permitted to act on its behalf, to use and display its protected Marks, data, and content, and to issue tickets to passengers on American flights.

Skiplagged, Inc. (“Skiplagged”) owns and operates the website Skiplagged.com. Skiplagged is not an authorized agent of American. Instead, Skiplagged obtains data on American flights by obtaining data from other agents of American (in apparent violation of their contracts with American), and/or by developing computer programs to obtain this information from American’s website. Skiplagged.com allows users to search for, identify, and purchase and book American flights directly on Skiplagged.com. In doing so, Skiplagged uses and displays on its website American’s Marks and American’s fare, schedule, inventory, ticketing, and flight data. Skiplagged does not inform users that it is not authorized to issue tickets to passengers on American’s behalf. Because it is not an agent, Skiplagged is not authorized to use American’s marks, data or content to market, display or sell American tickets or services.

On August 17, 2023, American filed a lawsuit against Skiplagged, asserting, among other claims, trademark infringement and false designation of origin/unfair competition. American seeks an injunction to enjoin Skiplagged from, among other things, continuing its infringing use of American’s Marks; publishing American’s flight/fare content on Skiplagged’s website; selling or re-selling American flights, fares, or other products; holding itself out as an authorized agent of American or continuing to act in an agency capacity for American; or displaying or otherwise using the American Marks for commercial gain.

Having reviewed the complaint and various screenshots of American's and Skiplagged's websites, I designed multiple consumer survey experiments to evaluate (1) the likelihood and degree of confusion among consumers as to Skiplagged's affiliation, connection, or association with American and/or as to American's sponsorship, approval, or authorization of Skiplagged's services in offering and facilitating the sale of American flights; and (2) the degree of consumer deception associated with Skiplagged's offerings. As explained below and based on my analysis of the results of these consumer surveys, I have concluded with a reasonable degree of expert certainty that Skiplagged's activities (1) have generated confusion in the marketplace regarding Skiplagged's affiliation, connection, or association with American and American's sponsorship, approval, or authorization of Skiplagged's services, and (2) deceive consumers about the risks associated with its products/services.

B. Objectives

I was retained by Greenberg Traurig, LLP, and Kelly Hart & Hallman, LLP, counsel for American, to assess whether, and to what extent, Skiplagged's published content and offerings on Skiplagged.com relating to American flights has generated confusion and deception in the marketplace, including as it relates to Skiplagged's perceived association with and/or authorization or sponsorship from American. To accomplish this objective, I considered whether Skiplagged's uses of the American Marks and data were likely to cause, or have caused, confusion amongst consumers who have booked airline tickets using a third party website in the past year, or who plan to do so in the coming year.

The purpose of these experiments was to determine, respectively, whether participants: (A) exhibited confusion about whether Skiplagged is an authorized agent of American; (B) exhibited other confusion about the relationship between Skiplagged and American; (C) exhibited confusion or deception about the fees and total cost charged by Skiplagged; and (D) exhibited confusion about the risks involved in buying “hidden city” tickets from Skiplagged.

II. QUALIFICATIONS

In 2021, I received an Honorary Doctorate from Reichman University (Israel), a university I co-founded in 1994. More recently (2023) I received the International Marketing Trend Conference Award.

Expert Witness Experience: I have conducted and evaluated marketing and consumer research for use in litigation, have been qualified as a marketing and survey research expert in court proceedings, and have testified at deposition and trial in federal courts.

Relevant Qualifications for this Case: Academic and Industry expert Re marketing, marketing strategy, consumer behavior, marketing research, and advertising.

Attached as Appendix A to this Report is a copy of my brief biography, my full resume, a list of my publications, and a list of cases in which I testified since 2018.

Compensation: My compensation is at my regular consulting rate of $1200 per hour and is not contingent on my opinions or the outcome of this litigation.

III. SUMMARY OF OPINION

My expert opinion is that Skiplagged's hidden city and non-hidden city ticket offerings have the following negative impact on consumers:

- a. Skiplagged confuses consumers into believing that Skiplagged is associated with or authorized by American (either as an authorized travel agent for American or as having some other direct relationship with American);
- b. Skiplagged deceives consumers into believing that purchasing a regular, non-hidden city ticket on Skiplagged.com is cheaper than purchasing the same flight(s) from American directly; and
- c. Skiplagged deceives consumers of hidden city tickets by not effectively disclosing to them all of the serious risks and/or consequences imposed by airlines in connection with hidden city tickets.

My conclusions are based on the following:

1. Two consumer experiments in which test groups saw a Skiplagged.com web site offering for either a hidden city flight or non-hidden city ticket. Two control groups saw a corresponding ticket offered on Expedia.com.
  - The findings of these experiments showed significant levels of confusion and deception among consumers.
2. Four independent sets of data, all of which validate the findings of the consumer experiments. These included:
  - a. Actual complaints to AA;
  - b. Actual complaints to Skiplagged;
  - c. Analysis of consumer conversations on social networks; and
  - d. Insights from consumer behavior and advertising and marketing theories and findings.

IV. METHODOLOGY

To determine if Skiplagged’s practices lead consumers to (a) perceive that they are an authorized agent of (or have other association with) American Airlines and (b) be deceived, I designed and implemented two consumer experiments and validated them against marketing and consumer behavior theories and findings.

A. The Voice of the Consumer – The Consumer Experiments

Because Skiplagged has two different airfare offerings—regular flight tickets and “hidden city” tickets—I designed two related experiments, one for each type of offering. The experiments also were designed to test the validity of the two major questions – namely, whether consumers (a) perceive Skiplagged as an authorized agent of American or having some other association with American, and (b) are deceived by Skiplagged’s advertising messages and offerings.

Regarding question (b), this included two conditions:

- (i) For the regular (non-hidden city) tickets: Skiplagged’s claim of providing the “cheapest regular flights;” and
- (ii) For the hidden city tickets: the adequacy of Skiplagged’s disclosures to consumers regarding the risks associated with booking a hidden city ticket.

To assure the validity of the findings, the research design relied heavily on responses to open-ended questions.

1. The Research Design

After qualifying the respondents (see universe and sample sections), the main questionnaire was based on 5 major and intercalated parts:

1. Showing the respondents in the test group the Skiplagged flight offering and showing the respondents in the control group the Expedia flight offering (see the Stimuli section) and assuring that they could see it clearly (Q0).
2. Asking an open-ended question with a follow up probing on how the respondent would describe the offering to a friend (Q1).

3. Asking the typical confusion questions regarding connection or association (Q3) and permission or authorization (Q4-6), with follow up probes of the reasons for their response.
4. Asking a series of questions about the respondent's beliefs regarding the Skiplagged (or Expedia) offerings and the reasons for such beliefs (Q7-12), their awareness and usage of Skiplagged (or Expedia) (Q13), and feelings about Skiplagged's (or Expedia's) offerings and the reasons for such beliefs (Q14).
5. Showing the offering on AA.com for the same/corresponding flight ticket and asking the respondent about their reactions after having this information to compare to the Skiplagged (or Expedia) offering (Q15), their intentions to buy their next airline ticket from Skiplagged, and the reasons for their response (Q16).

The design was based on two experiments:

- a. Using the Skiplagged regular ticket as the stimulus for the test group vs. the ticket offering on Expedia for the same/corresponding flight, as a control group; and
- b. Using the Skiplagged hidden city ticket as the stimulus for the test group vs. the ticket offering on Expedia for a corresponding flight to the intended destination, as a control group.

Expedia was chosen as a control to show what the responses would be as to an authorized agent of American. The interpretation of the difference between the test and control groups is that the closer the results for Skiplagged are to those of Expedia the greater the perceived confusion and deception.

2. Universe and Sample

The Universe

The universe for each study included U.S. consumers who (a) booked a commercial flight in the past 12 months and/or intended to do so in the next 12 months, and (b) booked or intend to book their tickets through an online ticket website.

The Sample

The sample was drawn from the panel of Prodege. See Appendix C-1. An initial sample matching the census gender, age, race, and geography assured the representativeness of the sample.

It was further screened for the relevant study criteria:

- Passed the CAPTCHA test (to ensure all participants were humans).
- They or members of their families do not work for
  - (ii) An advertising agency or public relations firm,
  - (iii) A market research firm or the market research department of a company,
  - (iv) A marketing firm or the marketing department of a company law or legal firm
  - (v) An airline, travel agency, or a company that sells airline and travel tickets
- If they wore glasses or contact lenses when using a mobile device, laptop, or desktop computer, they had them on.

The total sample included 600 respondents across all studies, as shown below.

3. The Stimuli

The stimuli are included in Appendix C-2 and were embedded in the 4 programmed questionnaires. Appendix C-3 includes the screen shots of one of these.

To ensure that a fair and representative sample booking was used as the stimuli for the consumer survey, we (a) generated 200 different pairings of randomized “tier 1” airports across the country to use for the respective origin/destination, (b) generated and assigned randomized flight dates for each pairing, (c) ran searches on Skiplagged.com (for one-way flights) using each set of randomized flight criteria, (d) simulated 200 “test buys” on Skiplagged.com by selecting the least expensive American flight option shown in the search results and proceeding through the booking process up to the final checkout page, and (e) recorded the final total cost charged by Skiplagged for each booking. Contemporaneous with each test booking on Skiplagged.com, we searched for the same corresponding flights/itineraries on AA.com and recorded the total cost charged by American for each. Of those 200 samples, 41 of the test bookings were for a “hidden city” flight ticket. Then, to determine the particular booking that would provide the most realistic and representative stimuli for the survey, we (1) separated the hidden city bookings from the non-hidden city bookings, (2) calculated the average price differential (between Skiplagged.com vs. AA.com) across all hidden city bookings, and across all non-hidden city bookings, respectively, and (3) selected the hidden city test booking that was closest to the average price difference across the hidden city bookings, and selected the non-hidden city test booking that was closest to the average price difference across the non-hidden city bookings. Additionally, upon identifying and selecting the most representative hidden city booking and non-hidden city booking to use for the survey, we also collected and used as control stimuli the corresponding offerings on Expedia.com for the same flights shown on the respective Skiplagged.com and AA.com stimuli.

For the non-hidden city bookings, the average price differential was $12.62 more expensive on Skiplagged.com than AA.com (the median difference was $10.00 more on Skiplagged.com than AA.com). Thus, the stimuli selected for the survey was a booking that was $10.00 more expensive on Skiplagged.com than AA.com. For the hidden city bookings, the average price differential was $62.46 cheaper on Skiplagged.com than AA.com (and the median was $28.80 cheaper on Skiplagged.com than AA.com). Thus, based on the specific test buys simulated, the stimuli selected for the survey was a booking that was $55.00 cheaper on Skiplagged.com than AA.com. The selected stimuli are included in appendix C2 and in the programmed questionnaire.

5. Data Collection and Quality Control

The data collection was conducted by Radius Global.<sup>1</sup> They worked under my direction, formatted, and programmed the questionnaires, coordinated the data collection process, analyzed the data, and prepared the Appendices for this report. The data collection was done between April 10 – 15, 2024 and resulted in 600 respondents. The data collection was stopped after the first day of interviewing (as a pretest). Since none of the respondents had any difficulties with the questionnaire, we continued with the data collection.

In addition to the quality assurance questions included as part of the screening questions, Radius employed the following quality control procedures:

- Surveys hosted on secure encrypted servers.

<sup>1</sup> Radius Global is a leading provider of research, data, analytics, insights, and marketing intelligence. See <https://radiusinsights.com/>

- Data checks implemented:
  - Check for duplicate IP addresses to keep respondents from taking the survey more than once;
  - CAPTCHA;
  - Speeders removed from data;
  - Open-ended responses reviewed to ensure respondent is paying attention/providing meaningful answers.

6. Analysis

The analysis included:

- Analysis of the verbatim responses regarding the reasons for the confusion and perceived deception. This analysis followed the scientific approach for content analysis, including coding the data by (a) involving two independent coders who were not familiar with the objective of the study or its sponsors, and (b) a procedure for resolving conflicts between the two coders; and
- Computer tabulations of the results.
- Testing for the statistical significance of the difference between the test and control groups of each of the two stimuli. The Hidden City and Non-Hidden City offerings

B. Validating the consumer experiments with other data and relevant marketing and consumer behavior theories and findings

To validate the findings of our customer experiments we looked at other relevant data sets that included.

1. Consumer complaints to AA about Skiplagged re confusion and perceived deception.

During the period 1/1/2018 – 3/6/2024, the AA customer complaint database identified 88 complaints with the terms “Skiplagged” or “Skiplag”. Eighty (80) of the complaints dealt with Hidden City. The analysis was done by a litigation support company using the following definitions:

Deception - any complaint where the customer misunderstood what they were buying. This included where the customer is confused because their itinerary has an extra leg beyond where they plan to get off; where the customer did not get the necessary visa or bring a passport for a ticket with where final destination is international; where the customer does not understand why they couldn't check a bag; where the customer complains that they paid more booking through Skiplagged versus booking directly. This category also included complaints about consumer consequences, such as: did the customer get denied boarding; was the customer prevented from checking-in; did the customer have to rebook and pay a higher price; did the customer lose baggage when it was checked through to the destination; and any other instance where the customer had harm/loss/consequences as a result of their hidden city ticket.

Confusion – any complaint about role, authority, or relationship of Skiplagged vis a vis the airline. This included any complaint suggesting the customer misunderstood what Skiplagged could and could not do to support a customer after purchase, or the customer assumed Skiplagged could provide travel agency services; any complaint where the customer expected Skiplagged to reaccommodate, cancel, refund flight price, make meal selections or seat reservations; and any complaint where the customer thought Skiplagged is an approved booking partner or agent.

Other - all documents that do not fall under the above categories.

Analysis of the complaints revealed the following distribution.

- Confusion and Deception (n=22)
- Deception (n=57)
- Neither (n=7)

2. Consumer complaints to Skiplagged re confusion and perceived deception.

Skiplagged produced a total of 46,621 documents. Of those, 30,658 were emails with one of the following email addresses as a last-in-time sender or recipient:

- agent@skiplagged.com
- booking@skiplagged.com
- privacy@skiplagged.com
- support@skiplagged.com

These are Skiplagged's customer support emails. The vast majority of these emails relate to AA bookings.

The documents are in a Relativity database. Using Relativity's Sampling tool (<https://help.relativity.com/RelativityOne/Content/Relativity/Sampling.htm>), we created a randomized 95/2.5 statistical sample. The sample was 1,464 emails. We categorized these documents as Deception, Consumer Confusion or Other, defined as set forth above.

Analysis of the complaints revealed the following distribution.

- Confusion (n=263)
- Deception (n=204)
- Confusion and Deception (n=47)
- Other (n=951)

The sampled data, when projected to the universe of complaints to the nearest thousand, suggests approximately 12,000 of the complaints reflect deception and/or confusion.

3. Consumer posts on social networks illustrating confusion and deception.

I directed Voluble<sup>2</sup> to identify and collect consumer comments posted online about Skiplagged. To identify consumer comments about Skiplagged, a search for social media posts that contain the term “skiplagged” or “skip lagged” was performed using Brandwatch, an industry-leading database that provides access to social media data. The search was limited to posts on X (formerly, Twitter) and Reddit, as these platforms returned the highest volume of consumer posts that mentioned Skiplagged. I then reviewed the posts returned by the search to identify those that were potentially relevant to my analysis.

4. Consumer behavior and advertising theories and findings that support the validity of our empirical findings.

The purpose of this additional analysis is to test to what extent consumer behavior and advertising theories and findings are consistent with or support the findings of our experiments and the other independent data.

V. FINDINGS

- A. The results of the consumer experiments are presented in the five sections corresponding to the five key areas of interest addressed by the experiments.

1. Consumers' awareness and usage of Skiplagged (vs. Expedia)

As can be seen in Exhibit 1 below, as expected most respondents are familiar with Expedia. In contrast only a small % (between 14 and 18%) are familiar with Skiplagged. Yet, among the segment familiar with Skiplagged, the percent who used Skiplagged for regular tickets is similar to the % of Expedia users among those aware of them. But the % of users of Skiplagged Hidden city tickets are much lower.

2. Consumers' perceptions of Skiplagged (vs. Expedia)

Exhibit 2 includes illustrative responses to the open ended question “how would you describe the offering on this (Skiplagged) website to a friend?” For a full listing of these responses, see the full verbatim in Appendix C-6.

| Very good website for booking flights  |
| It's a offering for airline tickets  |
| It's a good awful price wise but I thought the airlines did not allow this                 |
| The site is clear about baggage requirements and says the airlines don't like this method. |
| It's a cheaper alternative to most options. No checked bags, but it's worth it.            |
| Receive a discount compared to the actual airline site.                                    |

At the end of the questioning re Skiplagged (Expedia), we asked the respondents in Question 14a “reflecting on the Skiplagged (Expedia) offering and everything you know about them how do you feel about buying your next airline ticket from them?” The responses were coded into positive, neutral, or negative sentiment and presented in Exhibit 3. Examination of these results show that less than 12% of the respondents had negative sentiment toward Skiplagged. Yet, this is more than double the negative sentiment toward Expedia. While the positive sentiments toward Skiplagged are significantly below that of Expedia, they are still very high -- 45% among the Non-Hidden City ticket customers and 35% among the Hidden City customers.

| I am not familiar with this website and would not be comfortable ordering tickets there.                              | I would rather book directly from website   | I would not buy my next ticket from them because of the fees and how cluttered their website looked. | Likely buy directly from airline unless they offer a great deal   |
| I have never heard of this company. It doesn't state whether your ticket is valid through the airlines purchased for. | I wouldn't buy from Expedia again I have had bad experiences when my flight was cancelled | Cautious as I have never heard of them   | It is probably better to go direct through the airline  |
| I will not be doing this because I will not end up on the no flight list.   | I will be very careful  | I would not buy the ticket   | I usually find better rates if I just book the flight myself through the airlines   |
| i have never heard of them before - so will be a bit wary   | I dont like expedia   | Fairly risky and might lose your money at the end  | I will likely not unless it is much cheaper   |
| I probably would still go through the airline website   | No. I will stick to going to the direct airline I am flying with                          | I'm just not sure because it's making me seem like I shouldn't trust it                              | I will continue to use the airline website  |
| Still not sure how reliable it would be   | I likely will not use Expedia unless it offers something cheaper than I can find          | Another online service trying to make money  | I have never used Expedia personally, but I did use another similar site and was very displeased at all the "hidden" charges. So, I probably would not purchase a ticket through Expedia. |

| I would need to do some research on them before using them, I research everything before using it.                   | I may do it. I will compare with other websites.                     | Very possible, I can't plan to far ahead! There is deception:

- For Non-Hidden City ONLY: Skiplagged (Expedia) is cheaper than American Airlines
- For Hidden City: Consumer doesn't understand that there are meaningful risks associated with the ticket (financial penalties, not being able to fly on airline, etc.)

There is not deception:

- For Hidden City: Consumers understand at least one meaningful risk (beyond needing to pack a carry on) AND think the risks are worth it

Ambiguous

- If unclear based on responses
- For Hidden City: If only mention less meaningful risks (can't check a bag)

3. Consumers' beliefs re Skiplagged's (Expedia) association with AA

One of the most striking findings of our study is that 41% of respondents exposed to the Skiplagged stimuli associated Skiplagged with AA, which is about the same % as those who associated Expedia (i.e., AA's legitimate/authorized agent) with AA. Even among those exposed to the Hidden City offering, 30% associated Skiplagged with AA. The detailed results based on questions 1 ,2, 4, 5 and 6 are presented in Exhibit 4.

To get a better understanding of the respondent's perceptions of the relationship between Skiplagged and AA, we asked them two additional questions: (Q7a) whether "Skiplagged (Expedia) is the authorized agent of the airline" or not. The responses to this question and a follow up question regarding the reasons for their belief are presented in Exhibit 5. Examination of these results shows that over 40% of the respondents exposed to the two Skiplagged stimuli believed Skiplagged is an authorized agent of the airline. And an additional 14-17% believed there is some other relationship between the two. Many of the reasons for this are not surprising, which included the facts that you can buy the ticket for the airline and the way the information is presented.

| Q7b Illustrative Reasons for believing that Skiplagged (Expedia) is an authorized agent of the airline |   |   |   |   |
|   | Because they have to be to be dealing with the airline          | Because they wouldn't be able to broker me a flight then  | Generally many airlines require this for the services to be sold by a third party | That's the only way Expedia will be allowed to sell airline tickets from that company |
|   | Because I can buy a ticket                                      | It connects with the airline so that they know that you booked a ticket to their airline.               | From the name and information   | It shows real time travel rates   |
|   | They obviously selling tickets for them                         | The airline offers a certain amount of tickets to the company at a reduced rate for the company to sell | Because you buy tickets from them   | The airline is allowing Expedia to sell tickets for THEIR services provided.          |
|   | They are helping to sell flight tickets through their platform. | Because I always booked at 39xpedia agency to book any airlines   | They must be authorized to sell plane tickets                                     | I would have to believe that they would be otherwise how could they sell the ticket   |
|   | They're selling airline tickets                                 | They connect the passenger to the actual flight and receive payments                                    | Because their selling the airlines tickets and flights.                           | It has been around for a long time so it would make sense that it would be            |
|   | By how the information was listed                               | You can get on the airline through Expedia but have to contact Expedia if you have any problems.        | Because your able to buy a airline ticket associated with the airline             | There are many flights available through the Expedia website.                         |

The second question regarding the relationship between Skiplagged and the airline was Q 11: whether “Skiplagged (Expedia) is an authorized travel agency with access to fares I could not access via the airline.”

The responses to this question are presented in Exhibit 6. An extremely high percent of respondents --close to 40%-- exposed to the two Skiplagged stimuli said YES. Many of the reasons for this perception is the way the material is presented.

| Q11b Illustrative Reasons for believing Skiplagged (Expedia) is an authorized travel agency with access to fares I could not access via the airline |  |   |  |  |
|  | Because I could buy the ticket   | It helps me book the ticket, luggage, and it gives me an option to pay more for luggage protection. | Can only book those fares though them                  | They sell fares for airlines so that should mean they have access to flights                   |
|  | Because their service is unique to them  | You can book any airlines through Expedia   | Listed on a major airline website                      | Some deals are only listed on their site   |
|  | Because I believe they are cheaper   | Airlines set aside a number of available seats to authorized travel agencies.                       | It seems like they offered exclusive discounts         | This is the business they are in. They have certain parameters that make them more attractive. |
|  | Those tickets were too cheap for it to be anything else.                                     | This is what Expedia does   | States it in the pictures                              | I know they compare prices for the best deal   |
|  | It seems they have very reasonable prices that I have not seen through the airlines directly | Expedia works to fulfill vacancies  | I could not access via the airline                     | They are a travel company to book the entire trip from flights, hotels and car rentals         |
|  | The only way I see them being able to get that low prices                                    |   | If they weren't authorized, they would be shut down.   |  |

Given that we had a number of questions probing the respondent's' perceived association between Skiplagged and the airlines, exhibit 6a includes a summary of these responses identifying the NET percent of respondents who believed that such association exists. The results show that an overwhelming number of respondents (73% - 76%) believe Skiplagged is affiliated with AA. This is only slightly below the belief as to Expedia (AA's actual authorized agent).

4. Consumers' belief re Skiplagged's deceptive messages and offers (vs. Expedia)

AA's Complaint in this case alleges that Skiplagged deceives consumers to believe that Skiplagged's regular tickets are cheaper than purchasing tickets directly from the airline, and that Skiplagged does not fully disclose to consumers the actual risks/consequences of purchasing a hidden city ticket from Skiplagged. To test these allegations, we asked the respondents who were exposed to the Skiplagged offerings a few questions.

The first of these questions asked if “buying tickets through Skiplagged (Expedia) is cheaper than buying directly from the Airline” or not (Q8).

Not surprisingly, 62% of the respondents exposed to the first stimulus (the non-hidden city tickets) and 70% of those exposed to the second stimulus (the hidden city tickets) said YES. This is very similar to the % who said yes to this question with respect to Expedia.

A related question was whether “Skiplagged (Expedia), charges an additional fee on top of the airline total cost” (Q9).

Exhibit 8 presents the results, which show that one out of three respondents exposed to the non-hidden city stimuli said YES and one of 4 of the respondents exposed to the hidden city stimulus said YES. And both % are very similar to those of Expedia.

|   | No additional charges was stated on their website  | It rather comes with discounts and rewards                                       | Much cheaper  | Did not see an extra fee listed                        |
|   | It doesn't charge  | They collect a fee from the airlines   | They make there money from airline                  | From my experience, they simply do not do this.        |
|   | I get a better value for my money when buying through this platform.                         | It said so   | No additional cost if direct to the airline website | From past experience.                                  |
|   | They don't accept extra fee  | I didn't see additional fee on the website                                       | I used it before and there was no additional fee    | They get a percentage of tickets sold from the airline |
|   | The website doesn't charge extra it just charges your regular feats and how much ticket cost | I didn't see any extra fees  | It was stated                                       | No fees are listed                                     |
|   | It doesn't say they do   | It only charged taxes on top of the ticket price so there is no additional fees. | It's what I saw within the ad itself.               | Additional fees are charged by the aitline             |

|  | It seems fair  | I feel the fee is reasonable because it would help their business out and it'll improve their services. | 45.00 is a o.k. fee                               | There is not an uplift in the price.  |
|  | They are a middle plane of plane tickets                               | They just charged taxes   | Other sites charge at least this fee or more.     | Because it is still less than retail.   |
|  | They have to make money somehow  | Not too much  | they have to make some money                      | I don't mind paying additional if it's really worth it.   |
|  | So I can get a better deal overall.                                    | The earliest bookings normally save customers money   | They prices seemed reasonable given today's costs | Affordable prices.  |
|  | There's a detailed information about the booking process for travelers | It's a third party and there is a fee   | reasonable price good for everyone                | They usually have all the information you need about a trip so they offering something that is valuable |
|  | The $10 feed at this website charges is quite reasonable              | It is a decent fee And and not too expensive  | The price that's offered                          | I've booked with Expedia before and I think the rates are the same or very close with er way.           |

The following exhibits present the respondents' perceived legitimacy and risk of the Skiplagged offerings.

Exhibit 9a presents the results to the question of whether “a ticket bought through Skiplagged (Expedia) is a valid ticket.” Over 70% of the respondents to Skiplagged stimuli said YES. Very close to the around 90% who said so for Expedia. The exhibit also includes some illustrative quotes; for more detailed verbatim, see Appendix C-6.

Exhibit 9b presents the results to the question of whether “the option offered by Skiplagged (Expedia) carries no risk.” Over a third of all respondents to both Skiplagged stimuli said YES.

This is significantly lower than the perceived risk of Expedia, but still a very high percentage, and especially with respect to the numerous risks of the hidden city offering.

The next two exhibits focus on the perceived risks of buying Skiplagged (Expedia) tickets.

Exhibit 10a categorized the open ended responses to the question “what are the risks associated with this ticket” and a follow up probe. (Q12e: f). The risks were categorized into three categories: meaningful risks, unmeaningful risks, and no risk. The definition and examples are listed underneath the below exhibit. Examination of the results show that the vast majority of the respondents perceived no risk, and only 4% of the respondents who saw the Skiplagged first stimulus and 17% of those who saw the second stimulus perceived a meaningful risk.

Meaningful Risks:

Includes the following risks:

- Financial penalties
- Can't fly on airline/Can get banned/Makes airline angry
- Cancellation problems/schedule changes
- Ticket isn't valid/ticket may not be honored
- Refund issues
- Fraud/scam issues
- Changes in plans
- Delays
- 'Third party' risk
- Weather risk
- No seats/plane is full
- Other Meaningful risks

Examples:

- Maybe the airline will be angry and kick you off the plane
- Unknown extra fees at the airline, change fees, chance they are a scam website, cancellation fees.
- Not being validated or if it is canceled

Unmeaningful Risks:

Includes the following:

- Can't check a bag
- Unidentified Risks

Examples:

- Everything has risk
- Lost items
- Every ticket purchase carries risk. You can buy all the insurance in the world, have all the assurances in the world, and all the guarantees in the world, but stuff still happens.

Exhibit 10b presents the number of meaningful risks identified by the respondents.

Examination of the results show that, despite the numerous risks associated with the Hidden City tickets, the vast majority of the respondents do not perceive any meaningful risks, 11% perceive only one meaningful risk, and hardly anyone mentioned 2 or more meaningful risks.

5. Consumers' reactions to knowing the facts about the AA offer and the actual risks of the Hidden city offer.

The last part of the questionnaire focused on the respondent's reaction to knowing the truth about how Skiplagged's offering compared to the same offering on AA.com, and, for the respondents who saw the Skiplagged hidden city stimulus, the risks associated with this offer.

Exhibit 11a presents the results of the open-ended responses to the question "Comparing the results you got from Skiplagged (Expedia) and from American Airlines websites, how do you feel about the Skiplagged (Expedia) offering?" (Q15a: b). Surprisingly, only 20% of the Skiplagged respondents who saw the first stimulus and 25% of those who saw the second stimulus had negative sentiment toward Skiplagged. And a very large segment still had positive sentiment toward Skiplagged – 50% among those who saw the first stimulus and 43% among those who saw the second stimulus.

The following three Exhibits – 11b, c and d, presents illustrative quotes for the negative, neutral, and positive reactions.

| I feel like they're ripping people off   | Is that the total price or is n the next screen adds fees? If it is the same price why not go through the airline instead? | not sure worth it since I normally have luggage to check and want my frequent flyer miles       | Not a big enough discount.                                      |
| They are charging more than booking directly with the airline.   | I feel it might be a scam because they're the same   | I think it's risky  | Since it is the same, I would book directly through the airline |
| I prefer to order tickets from a site I am familiar with.  | it was more expensive and less secure than just buying from the airline  | It seems like there are risks   | It cost too much  |
| There isn't a huge difference that I would deem it creditable to use this site. Play it safe and buy from the airlines directly. | American Airlines just looks more setup then Expedia does  | sounds like they are using exploitive practices.  | I would just use the American airlines website                  |
| It is $10 more because of service charge so why book it   | Not great. it's the exact same, so there's no incentive to chose them over the aurline                                     | American airlines website is more accurate than skiplagged                                      | American Airlines is cheaper by about $35                      |
| It is expensive and has several charges  | The Expedia offering did not charge significantly more at all.   | Wow. I wasn't aware of the airline restrictions. Maybe that's not the best way to buy a ticket. | Is more expensiv  |

| Same offering as the airline   | The same flight same price  | Cheaper but not clearer   | They are the same prices   |
| It is reasonable, but I would then book directly through the airline                                     | Not bad. The difference is in incentives  | It really just depends on the situation   | It's essentially the same  |
| Same as other booking sites  | The offers are the same   | I feel like it is cheaper, but it violates the airline policy so there is a risk. | It looked similar, so not sure why I would use it                  |
| I'd feel comfortable buying a ticket from this agency it looks professional and just like other websites | About the same  | I feel like it's almost identical   | The same flights   |
| It looks like any other travel website I've used before.   | It looks almost exactly the same, I would feel like Expedia is just offering the same thing I see with American | I think they offer more but I'm just not sure if I still trust it                 | It's literally the same exact thing                                |
| Is a great offer if not the same   | It is basically the same price  | I'm not sure now if it's okay or not  | I think it was pretty much the same                                |

| It is way more cheape  | It seems like a better deal  | Love it, seems to be a smart way to hack the system                            | It is favorable and credible.   |
| I feel as if I am getting a better value for my money.   | It's cheaper and affordable  | They offer more protection plans as to your flight.                            | Feel as though the price is great and better.   |
| It's cheaper   | This is a good offering  | It's a more affordable option  | Expedia is less and easier to navigate.   |

Exhibit 12 asks the respondents about their intentions to buy their next ticket from Skiplagged (Expedia). And this is after being exposed to the facts about the AA offer, and, for respondents who saw the Hidden City offering, after finding out about the risks of the offer.

Surprisingly, almost half of the respondents still definitely or probably would buy the tickets from Skiplagged.

B. Other Data supporting the Experimental Findings

In this section, we will briefly review 4 sets of data, which individually and collectively support the findings of our experiments.

1. Illustrative actual confusion and perceived deception in consumer complaints to AA

The following two exhibits present illustrative cases of actual confusion as evident from an analysis of consumer complaints to AA.

Exhibit 14 presents illustrative complaints to AA evidencing confusion as to association between Skiplagged and AA.

Exhibit 15 presents illustrative complaints to AA evidencing Skiplagged deceptive practices.

Exhibit 14

Complaints to AA evidencing confusion as to the association between Skiplagged and AA

“Skiplagged your third party agent processed my reservation.”

- Mohamed Msekeni, 4/19/18, AA-SKP-00052765

“With all the being said it seems as if your company is in business with Skiplagg to do this very thing to customers.”

- Mercedes Sutphen, 6/8/21, AA-SKP-00052724

“American is allowing this website [Skiplagged] to sell tickets and my daughter was completely unaware of their practice.”

- Scott Posner, 6/15/21, AA-SKP-00053199-200

“AA accepts reservations from Skiplagged and accepted payment from me, . . . all while still partnering with the website Skiplagged where I purchased the ticket.”

- Lawanda Blair-Foster, 1/18/21, AA-SKP-00053062-63

“pax stated that she did want to hear any additional excuses as Skippedlag is in partnership with AA and stealing peoples money.”

- Tamara Speaks, 9/5/18, AA-SKP-00052798

“American Airlines allows these sights to sell these tickets.”

- srposner@hotmail.com, 6/19/21, AA-SKP-00052726

Complaints to AA evidencing Skiplagged's deceptive practices

"I and my husband called AA and were told that we would need to contact customer service via email in order to receive a refund of the ticket we received through Skiplagged because the ticket is invalid. . . . I also will like for American Airlines to stop [Skiplagged] from selling hidden city tickets because customers are being duped into believing tickets are valid and not fraudulent."

- Lydia Davenport, 5/29/20, AA-SKP-00052952-53

"Upon boarding a fully booked flight and being asked to check my carry on luggage at the gate. I was then asked to step aside because confusion of my final destination. I purchased tickets from third party app skiplagged and was completely unaware of 'hidden city' until this unfortunate situation occurred."

- Nia Aziz-Hughes, 11/3/20, AA-SKP-00053024-25

"I understand I lidden City flights go against your policy but now where on the Skiplagged app does it state that."

- Francoargentina_1717@hotmail.com, 5/26/21, AA-SKP-00052720

"I completely understand and I'm going to be completely honest that I didn't know about the hidden city part what I thought I was doing was getting a flight from EGA to CET for cheap price off skiplagged. Had I known that I would've never ordered off of their site."

- rashodjackson716@gmail.com, 23/2/21, AA-SKP-00052727

"Purchased tickets on Skiplagged for a flight from JFK to CVG on Wednesday the 8th. When we arrived at CVG we waited an hour and our luggage did not come out. We went to AA baggage service and they was extremely rude stating they could not call down to get our luggage that it was a 'hidden city' flight. I explained nicely we do not know what that means[.]"

- Madison Chambers, 12/10/21, AA-SKP-00053239-40

"I booked a ticket from IAD to Austin on 10/11 on Skip lagged and due to the hidden city complications on skip lagged I wasn't aware there's an international destination on the the flight that I booked to Austin. . . and I wasn't aware of a fact that the flight was booked to Guatemala City."

- Kushalini Marisetty, 10/13/23, AA-SKP-00053339-40

"I have purchased my ticket online and was planning to go to monastery in Phoenix, AZ, but was mislead by internet site skiplag, which offered Phoenix as a hidden city and lead me to book the flight to Reno."

- Nadina Avchenko, 10/29/19, AA-SKP-00052895-96

“I purchased my tickets via Skiplagged. After my purchase, I discovered this ticket was actually for LGA and just connected at ORD. . . . I myself, however, was unaware Skiplagged would book my trip as what they call a -hidden city’ or that there were any rules against such a thing.”

- Chaetan Newell, 11/8/22, AA-SKP-00053293-94

“I thought I was buying a ticket like any other, like through any other aggregator website like kayak or flights.com.”

- matthew.didier@gmail.com, 6/7/21, AA-SKP-00052722

“We had booked our tickets through a company called Skiplagged. We were unaware that they had booked us to a hidden city. . . . We thought buying a ticket was okay since it was through the app. . . . I was unaware that the flight was booked to another city, . . .”

- Abdul Shute Jr., 10/15/20, AA-SKP-00053003-04

“Hello! I used a third party to book this flight called Skippedlagg. I wasn't aware what a ‘hidden city’ flight was but my final destination was nyc and it gave me an option for a flight to Nassau but you just get off at the connecting flight. I was not aware this is not allowed”

- Kaylynn Paulin, 12/1/23, AA-SKP-00053349-50

“I understand now that this isnt allowed by airline but this is information is not made known to customers. I only booked this flight because it was advertised on skip lagged as a hidden city flight. I had no idea it was not allowed and even\ when i explained that and tried to make any other option like continuing on to ft lauderdale and then back tracking to dallas on a cheaper flight I was told no.”

- Rachael Otomanski, 2/28/23, AA-SKP-00053296-97

2. Illustrative actual confusion and perceived deception in consumer complaints to Skiplagged

The following two exhibits presents illustrative cases of actual confusion as evident from an analysis of consumer complaints submitted to Skiplagged.

Based on the content analysis of randomly selected 1464 complaints, we found the following staggering level of confusion and deception:

- Complaints evidencing deception: 21%.
- Complaints evidencing confusion: 17%.

Exhibit 16 presents illustrative complaints evidencing deceptive practices, while Exhibit 17 presents illustrative complaints evidencing confusion.

Exhibit 16
Complaints to Skiplagged evidencing Skiplagged's deceptive practices.

“[W]e were told this is not except able to their Airlines and can cause us to be banned from flying with them! This was not stated anywhere on tour [your] site!”

- Joseph Pauling, 4/20/23, SKP00102530

“I last month had a terrible experience where I bought a flight with no indication of its difference from any other available flight. After booking I noticed a note that said 'the airline might not be happy about this flight,' with no further explanation besides 'don't do this often,' which seemed ominous but not at all indicative that the actual ticket might not be honored. I then went to the airport where American Airlines treated me like a criminal for having a confirmed booking of this type, would not honor my ticket as originally booked, and gouged me another $400 on the spot to get back to my originating airport. This was incredibly distressing; Skiplagged should not sell flights that will not be honored, or create bookings that will cause stress to the end user.”

- BBB Complaint pulled by Skiplagged, 6/7/21, SKP00093654-55

“So why do you offer this service of booking if you don't stand behind and honor the complete service? If you know that there is a possibility that my ticket will be flagged by the airline and denied access. Obvious you are aware of some issue because you told me not to mention Skiplagged to American Airlines. Almost like you know this issue has occurred in the past?”

- Samantha Merklein, 2/6/23, SKP00071991

“Hello, I found that booking directly with the airline provides me with a $30 discount of my flight. Therefore, it is more expensive for me to book through your website. ... [H]ow do I get a refund of the service fee you charged me? Since the service ended up costing me more money, I do not want to book through your site for a flight I can get for $30 cheaper and then pay an additional $10 service fee.”

- Madushini Craner, 5/29/21, SKP00045443-44

“I booked two flights with you and in both cases (see screen shot below) it was advertised as TOTAL COST= $68- but when I booked the flights you charged me a VERY LARGE SERVICE FEE- 50% of the airline ticket!!! The cost for 4 of us should have been $272 but then you charged me a service fee of $136 or half the price of the flight!!! That is not ok. ... No where did i see an advisory of your service fees. ... This is my first time using Skiplagged and will not use it again unless I feel something is done to remedy this experience. Again- It said in the final screen shot- TOTAL COST.”

- Mark Tefteller, 3/23/20, SKP00024561-62

“Hi, I'm sorry to bother you but my flights were supposed to be cheaper than the prices I was shown. It seems I paid the amount I would have paid if I went directly through American Airlines.”

- Corttanie Hambrick, 8/1/18, SKP00001001

“Why am I charged twice for service fees!!!! This ticket is supposed to be $67.20. Please help.”

- Karla Harscheid, 1/23/20, SKP00019390

“$35 service fee?!”

- Adeel Haque, 1/16/20, SKP00018999

“what the fuck is wrong with you guys????? WHY AM I BEING CHARGED $225 YOU TOLD ME IT WAS GOING TO BE $175 THIS IS A FUCKING SCAM!!!!!! I DONT WANT THIS ANYMORE!!!!!! I WANT MY $175 TICKET YOU FUCKING SCAMMERS THIS IS NOT WHAT I AGREED TO NOR WHAT YOU SENT ME INITIALLY THIS IS A FUCKING SCAM!!!!!!!!!!!!”

- Gabriela Attias, 10/26/18, SKP00002199

“During my purchase on your website, the system charged me $10 over what the very same airlines offers directly. Instead of being charged the advertised price of $214, it tacked on another $10 - bringing the total to $225. Confidential Whereas on the American Airlines website (via Google Flights), that same ticket is the advertised price of $214. . . . I'm confused as to what you're charging for if the airline price is the original listed price - not higher. There was no advantage in purchasing there. . . . [I]t can be difficult to understand something like this.”

- Slavik Lungu, 10/17/19, SKP00012618-20

“You ALL CHARGED SERVICE FEES!! Booking through skiplagged I didn't realize the airlines charged service fees as well. That's what I've been asking to get to the bottom of these fees. I'm very disappointed that I was charged $150 worth of service fees which is ridiculous. I've read reviews on your website and I'm not the only customer that this has happen to. I was looking for reasonable tickets and ended up paying full price with all these service fees. That was hidden until I printed off my confirmation receipt notice from the airlines. I will NOT use skiplagged again and I'll be writing my review as well. Folks beware skiplagged has hidden service fees which you'll be charged through them and the airlines so your really not getting cheap tickets.”

- Nadine Wellington, 12/4/19, SKP00015754

“I was forced to purchase a whole new flight as the airline was delayed. Although I know this was a hidden city ticket, it didn't state that I wouldn't be able to do a flight change or have no options!”

- Andrea Nettle, 1/6/20, SKP00018265-66

“I purchased a ticket to Chicago O'Hare airport on 8/23/18 from Las Vegas, Nevada. Record Locator: EANLBN. When I attempted to check in with American Airlines, I was informed that you all booked me on an international flight to Vancouver Canada. I have a passport, my son does not. NOW WE ARE SCREWED!!!! I would like a refund ASAP.”

- Fonda Darby, 8/24/18, SKP00001387

“We had our passports, that was not the issue. The issue was, with international flights, you cannot book a 1-way flight because of the legalities. Delta states that Skippedlag, should not be booking one-way flights with the final destination of an international location. If the final destination was a domestic location, there would not be a problem. Therefore, according to Delta Airlines, skiplagged does it's customers a disservice understanding that the process in which these tickets were purchased was fraudulent. . . . I believe this should be indicated in a clause section, easily accessed for a customer to read.”

- LaTosha Lawrence, 7/24/19, SKP00084903

“customer booked a JetBlue flight and was shown a carry-on bag was included in their Basic Economy ticket (they sent a screenshot). however, on JetBlue's website, it shows basic tickets only include a personal item not a carry-on. . . . we currently have these policies hard coded ”

- 11/10/21, SKP00095750-51

“When my son was checking in at the counter at American they said the ticket we bought through you was fraud because he is getting off in Phoenix instead of going all the way to Austin. They are charging him an extra $166.00 to get on the flight. That was the only way they would let him on. The spokesperson at the AA ticketing counter said this is completely the responsibility of the 3rd party involved in buying this ticket which you, Skiplagged. Could you please get back to me to see how this can be resolved to get our $166.00 back from you since you did not mention when buying this ticket their would be such a possible problem or charge. Never would I have purchased this ticket if this would have been clearing specified.”

- Joe Klein, 3/7/22, SKP00058775-76

“[F]irst you guys are a travel agency but impersonated me on the internet to book it directly on the AA website — when I went to check in, I told them I was going to Miami, they said my ticket was to Belize, which I never entered into your website and never showed up whilst I was booking with you guys — ... the ticket was then voided, they forced me to purchase a new ticket for $328 + $35 ticketing fee — If I don't get a full refund for both tickets + compensation I will be reversing all charges — this was so unfair and it is not right to make your clients commit illegal activity without their consent or knowledge — I understand that it just breaking the airline terms and conditions but this is not okay.”

- Charlie Cavallo, 2/18/19, SKP00004212

“Thank you for refunded me $15 but its still your responsibility for get me the whole amount. It not American airlines fault for hiding the stops that i have in my flight with all the respect it is your fault as company not to be 100% clear with the info that you represent on the screen. I was so shocked that they even told me that i am flying to puerto rico and all the problems that i had till i got to the flight.”

- Ronnie Shimon, 10/29/18, SKP00002212

“I read every guideline that is there on the links that you've provided me and additionally, i don't even have any check in bags or any carry on also. I just had a back pack with me and they said that the flight was full and had to rebook a ticket . . . They said that since my final destination is MYR, they gave me an option to book a direct ticket to MYR from DTW at no cost, but my intention was to travel to DCA because it is where my school is located, not in MYR. What shall I do in this situation?”

- Rajesh Reddy, 1/18/23, SKP00070901

“I tried to check in online and could not. I then get to airport, to check in and the agent then tells me i purchased a illegal ticket from your site. I paid more than $200 for a ILLEGAL YOCKEY THAT I WAS NOT SUPPOSED TO HAVE PURCHASED. I AM REACHING OUT FOR MY FULL REFUND. The airline (AMERICAN AIRLINE) is not RESPONSIBLE YOU ARE FOR SELLING ILLEGAL TICKETS.”

- Nathan Ellis, 9/16/21, SKP00050999-51000

“I had to find another flight through AA because the flight that was booked was meant to go to Cancun! You guys had Cancun marked out and said it was just a flight to DFW. . . . Make your website more understandable.”

- Felicia Taddonio, 8/26/18, SKP00001409-10

“I booked a flight today for my son from San Diego to Philadelphia. He was trying to get his seat information and is unable because it says the flight is going to Toronto and he needs to put in passport information. He doesn't have a passport and is only traveling to Philadelphia. I was completely unaware that this was being booked to Toronto. I would like to cancel this flight immediately. Please get back to me regarding this problem.”

- Lori Pulit, 8/10/18, SKP00001141-42

“[W]hat you do MAKE FULLY CLEAR is, the fact that the airlines isn't aware of your site they don't know a customer booked through your site and wasn't told about your company scamming ways to try to get you to your flight destination and the airline does not allow it, plus it's borderline illegal I was told by AA rep. Then you guys tell the customer to actually call and deal with the airline directly that the ticket schedule with knowing full well that when s*** hits the fan they're not honoring a damn thing. Had me standing in a airport after working all day, at lam only to be told, I couldn't take my flight and if I wanted to still go to TX I had to pay the actual ticket cost which was an additional 700+ dollars, thank God they took pity on me and only charged me an additional 300 dollars. You guys are criminals, hardened cold hearted unremorseful criminals and even if the law don't take care of you. Karma will eventually!”

- Kemico Martin, 8/3/18, SKP00001031

Complaints to Skiplagged evidencing confusion as to its association with AA

“If American Airlines is your partner, then you need to speak with them about letting people who buy your tickets in their planes.”

- Rosemarie Veltri, 2/22/19, SKP00004300

“Your clarification does not help. The screenshot I’ve attached shows the first line of my confirmation email. THANK YOU FOR BOOKING WITH SKIPLAGGED. ... If you are telling me Skiplagged did not book this flight. The confirmation email is from skiplagged ... My payment went to skiplagged. ... You can't be trusted to honor the reservations you make. . . . And skiplagged...is saying ‘well, we cant help you. We accept the money and cooperate with the airline but we have no control if they do not fulfill their obligations.’”

- Evans Juice, 12/15/22, SKP00070018

“I have not received a refund for this cancellation yet. The cancellation was made within 12 hours of booking as plans changed drastically. Please advise when the refund will be forthcoming.”

- Aaron Fallen, 6/1/23, SKP00077561

“I already spoke to the airlines but they said only your agency can help us as the booking has been done from your website which means u have access for any typo Errors Happened through ur website right.”

- Sanshi Reddy, 8/17/23, SKP00103741

“I would like a refund of the AA tickets that I just booked through your website. I am within the 24 hr deadline.”

- Cindy Garcia, 8/7/18, SKP00001090

“Is there a way that you can help me upgrade to economy.”

- Nikhil Gupta, 9/26/19, SKP00011574

“Just spoke with American Airlines and they told me that I must cancel thru the third party. Isn't skiplagged the third party in this instance. ... I just need to cancel so I can rebook the ticket asap.”

- Deena Chandler, 8/8/18, SKP00001105

3. Illustrative actual confusion and perceived deception in consumer posts on social media

Since actual complaints are often believed to be the “tip of the iceberg” given that most consumers are reluctant to complain, we also engaged in the analysis of consumer conversations on social networks. The results of this analysis are included in Exhibit 18.

The exhibit is divided into the following parts:

- Believing that Skiplagged is an agent of AA or another airline.
- Luggage sent to the wrong destination.
- Dishonored tickets/had to pay extra.
- The cost was higher than expected.
- Passport issues
- General dissatisfaction

Exhibit 18 includes illustrations posted on social media.

I trusted this "friend" because they said they knew of a way to get cheaper tickets and kept us in the dark about its details. We missed the flight and now our luggage is being shipped to another damn state thats not our supposed destination. I am annoyed and is currently frantically looking for a way to get it back. Should I just take the flight or can I have the airline ship it back? And fr, should i drop this friend lol. Dont use skip lagged people, esp when youre like me. I bought a skiplagged flight from DTW to FLL - with a connection in CLT (my intended destination). I tried to check in, but the gate attendant told me they knew CLT was my final destination and if I did not pay the change fee & did not get on my flight to FLL, I would be banned from American for life. ## Passport Issues

1. “i used skiplagged (great site, highly recommend )to book a flight home to CA from Hawaii early because my original flight overlapped with school. I show up to the airport and they ask me for my passport because the flight is technically to Canada with a layover in SF (where I planned to get off). I frantically call the airline an hour before the flight and try and explain the situation and they offer to change my flight for a $300 change fee ONTOP of the price of the new ticket. I hang up and change my story to someone stole my passport and I need to get on this flight to San Francisco where I can get a new passport and they no questions change my flight for no fees.”

3. “Usually it works great if one knows what s/he is doing, but one time was hilarious (to me). Wanted to go to PHX. Flt was $300+. Flt from LAX to Vegas was $48!!! with a layover conveniently in PHX. No brainer. Worked fine going. On the way back I had a flt to Seattle w a layover in LA. Mechanical issues cancelled the flt. They tell everyone they will rebook at the counter. The over accommodating agent is like “you’re in luck - there’s a direct flight to Seattle & we can upgrade you”! And it leaves in 30 minutes so you’ll arrive sooner!! Damn good customer service. What do I do!?! What can I say? “Oh no, I like layovers, inefficiency & downgrades”? I told her I had to go to the restroom- where I stayed until the flight left. Went online to book & there was a flight to BC w/ a layover in LA (not sure why it’s cheaper to go to BC from Phoenix than to LA). They wouldn’t let me board that flight b/c I didn’t have my passport. WTH? Can I have someone in LA meet me w it? No, you can’t board an international flt w no passport. But it’s going to LA 1st, which isn’t international. She said you can’t do that, but you wouldn’t want to take the chance of being stuck in LA. (Actually I would!) Ended up staying another night in PHX to catch the same PHX- LAX-Seattle flt I had originally. Even w the extra night hotel (and fun) I still saved almost $200! And the longer version makes for a great story. Hope they can't trace me thru this story. Crap"

I didn't have my passport, but I was effectively only taking the flight to Seattle. An attendant sent me to special services desk saying there was a way for me to get on the initial flight, knowing I had used Skiplagged. The Delta attendant at the services desk, seeing my issue, was adamant about it being impossible for me to get on the flight. He then began lecturing me about how I was a hipster and how I couldn't "cheat the system" among other things. He included that it was possible to get me booked just for the Seattle flight, but simply wouldn't. Due to the circumstances, I needed to book an emergency second flight to Seattle. Is there anything I can do about this? Can an airline decline service because of how I booked my flight?”

5. “Hey, just some more info — this exact thing happened to me. Traveling for work. Boss booked a Skiplagged from CMH->CLT(home airport)->LGA. The app would not let me get my boarding pass. See ticket agent. Agent informs me that because I have an NC ID, they believe it is not my intention to actually fly to LGA. I told him he can believe whatever he wants and that I would like my ticket. He, having no recourse, did print my ticket. Flight to LGA ended up being delayed a couple hours (oh nooo), so I ended up leaving CLT with no issues. I have never used Skiplagged for American because of this. Not worth the risk. But they really did flag me because of my ID.”

6. “Hey guys I was wondering if anyone who is familiar with Skiplagged can help me understand this. This is my first time using Skiplagged and I am not much of a traveler. I live in NYC. I am planning a week trip in Cancun followed by a couple of days in Miami. Three flights in all. JFK to Cancun (American Airlines), Cancun to Miami (JetBlue), then Miami to JFK (also JetBlue). However, I am now seeing that my credit card was charged for these random flights in Tulsa Oklahoma and Salt Lake City Utah?? I immediately suspected fraud, but interestingly enough, the charges are for the **same exact prices** as my vacation flights. I did some research on how Skiplagged works and apparently the website shows you hidden city flights. I didn't understand this before - so now I am wondering if I happened to unknowingly book a hidden city flight from Tulsa >>> NYC >>> Cancun or something, and am now being charged the full price by the airlines? I have no idea what's going on. Or is this just fraud? Was my info sow hacked and now someone is buying tickets from my card? Who would I go to to resolve this issue? The airlines or skiplagged? Or my credit card company for fraud? I've seen articles about Airlines banning or suing customers for booking through skiplagged, and I don't want to get in any trouble. Please help me understand this so I know how to explain my situation when I talk to a representative from an airline.”

4. Consumer behavior and advertising and marketing theories and findings that support the validity of our empirical findings.

When searching for cheap flights or directly for Skiplagged, the Skiplagged messages are very appealing.

Consider for example the prominent first search results sponsored by Skiplagged. “Skiplagged: the smart way to find cheap flights.” And the follow up heading “Find flights the airlines don’t want you to see,” “cheap flights to NY,” and next to it the Nerd Wallet post: “What is Skiplagged and how to use it,” with the following opening sentence: “Skiplagged is a legit way to reduce the cost of certain flights. By booking a hidden city ticket, you might be able to save hundreds of dollars.”

These and similar messages are appealing and meet the RAVES criteria for effective advertising and offering.<sup>3</sup>

- Relevant and respectful:
  - The big cost savings make it very relevant for any consumer looking for cheap flights.
- Actionable:
  - The convenience of a click away from getting the savings is very actionable and tempting.
  - The assurance of legitimacy also makes it more actionable.
- Valuable:
  - The big cost savings make it valuable for sophisticated consumers who weigh the cost benefits of the offer, given that Skiplagged does not disclose all the risks. The benefit of cost savings outweighs the few identified risks.
  - The presentation of the tickets with the AA logo and their typical format (see the stimuli we used in our study) further increases the consumer confidence that they are dealing with a legitimate agent of AA.
- Experiential:
  - The presentation of the offering with the AA logo and format assures the consumer an experience similar to the one they experience in dealing with AA directly or with authorized agents of AA.

---

<sup>3</sup> Based on Wind and Hays, Beyond Advertising: Creating Value Through all Customer Touchpoints. Wiley, 2016

- Sharable story:

- The hidden city story is clever, doing something which is legal, but the airlines do not like is intriguing and could tempt consumers to buy it and share it with others.
- And for some, the creative way of finding loopholes to get cheaper flights is appealing as well as a “David against Goliath” scheme.

Thus, based on what we know about how advertising works, the Skiplagged message and offering is clever and likely to work. While the FAQ includes a bit more information about the risks of Hidden city offering, the reality is that consumers rarely if ever read the small print.

VI. CONCLUSION

The conclusion of my analysis is:

1. The results of two consumer experiments among 600 consumers show conclusively that Skiplagged’s non-hidden city and hidden city ticket offerings deceive consumers to believe that Skiplagged is an authorized agent of or otherwise associated with American.
  - These results are clearly summarized in Exhibit 6a (p 41-42), which shows that 75% of consumers exposed to the non-hidden city ticket and 73% of the consumers exposed to the hidden city ticket believe that Skiplagged is associated with American.
    - This is just slightly below the level of perceived association between Expedia (the control groups) and American.
2. The results of the experiments clearly show that Skiplagged deceives consumers of its non-hidden city tickets to believe that purchasing a ticket on Skiplagged.com is cheaper than purchasing a ticket directly from American. In fact, 62% of the consumers exposed to the Skiplagged regular/non-hidden city stimulus believed that buying tickets through Skiplagged is cheaper than buying directly from the airline. See Exhibit 7.

- Relatedly, consumers of both the non-hidden city and hidden city tickets believed that Skiplagged does not charge an additional fee on top of the airline's total ticket costs (Exhibit 8a).
3. The results of the experiments clearly show that Skiplagged deceived consumers of its hidden city tickets to believe the following:
    - a. That a hidden city ticket bought through Skiplagged is a valid ticket – 70% of the respondents. See Exhibit 9a;
    - b. That a hidden city ticket offered by Skiplagged carries no risk – 36% of the respondents. See Exhibit 9b; and
    - c. Among those who perceived some risk, less than 17% perceived any meaningful risk (Exhibit 10a), and most of them perceived only one meaningful risk (Exhibit 10b).
  4. Knowing the truth about the AA prices and the real risks associated with hidden city tickets has only limited impact on consumers' intentions to buy their next airline tickets from Skiplagged. See Exhibit 12.
  5. Overall, consumers perceived Skiplagged quite similarly to their perceptions of Expedia, the legitimate and authorized travel agent of American that served as our control.
  6. The above findings are strongly validated by the actual complaint data received by American (Exhibits 14 and 15), the complaints received by Skiplagged demonstrating a very large number of confused consumers (Exhibits 16 and 17), and consumer conversations on social networks (Exhibit 18).
  7. All of my findings are consistent with what one would expect from consumer behavior, advertising, and marketing theories and practices.
  8. Given these findings Skiplagged's practices are harming both consumers and American Airlines.

YORAM (JERRY) WIND

Academic Positions: Jerry Wind is The Lauder Professor Emeritus and Professor of Marketing at The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Wind joined the Wharton faculty in January 1967, upon receipt of his doctorate from Stanford University, and was granted Emeritus status in July 2017.

Program Development: Dr. Wind was the founding director of the Wharton "think tank," The SEI Center for Advanced Studies in Management. The Center's mission was to assure, through research and development, the quality, relevance, and impact of management research, education, and practice (1988-2018). Dr. Wind was also the founder and academic director of The Wharton Fellows program from 2000 to 2018. From 1983 to 1988, he was the founding director of The Joseph H. Lauder Institute of Management and International Studies, and from 1980 to 1983 the founding director of The Wharton Center for International Management Studies. Dr. Wind chaired the Wharton committees that designed The Wharton Executive MBA Program (1974), the new MBA curriculum (1991), the School's globalization strategy (1995-1997), and the MBA's cross-functional integration efforts (2002-04). He also started The Wharton International Forum (1987) and served as the chairman of its faculty council until 1998. He was instrumental in establishing the Alfred West, Jr. Learning Lab and served as a member of its first advisory board (2001-05).

Publications: Dr. Wind is one of the most cited authors in marketing. His regular contributions to professional marketing literature include over 25 books and over 300 papers, articles, and monographs encompassing the areas of marketing strategy, marketing research, new product and market development, consumer and industrial buying behavior, and global marketing. Dr. Wind's books have received wide acclaim and many have been translated into a number of languages. His forthcoming book is Transformation in Times of Crisis with Nitin Rakesh. His most recent books include Can Art Aid in Resolving Conflicts (2018) with Noam Latar and Ornat Lev-er, Beyond Advertising (2016), and The Network Imperative (2016). Dr. Wind's other publications include: Competing in a Flat World, with Victor and William Fung (Wharton School Publishing 2007), The Power of Impossible Thinking: How Changing Your Mental Models Will Transform the Business of Your Life and the Life of Your Business, with Colin Crook (Wharton School Publishing 2004), Convergence Marketing: Strategies for Reaching the New Hybrid Consumer with Vijay Mahajan (Financial Times/Prentice Hall 2002), and Driving Change with Jeremy Main (Free Press 1998). Both The Power of Impossible Thinking and Convergence Marketing were selected by Executive Book Summaries as one of the thirty best business books of 2002 and 2004. His edited books— The Network Challenge: Strategy, Profit and Risk in an Interlinked World (Wharton School Publishing, June 2009), New Product Diffusion Models (Kluwer 2000), Digital Marketing (Wiley 2001), and Marketing Research and Modeling: Progress and Prospects (Kluwer 2004)—include the works of the leading experts on these topics.

Editorship: Dr. Wind founded Wharton School Publishing (Wharton's J.V. with Pearson) (2003), served as the first Wharton editor (2003-2008), and published over 60 books. He has served as editor-in-chief of the Journal of Marketing, on the policy boards of the Journal of Consumer Research and Marketing Science, and has been on the editorial boards of the major marketing journals. He has been a guest editor of special issues of the major marketing journals including Marketing Science (1996) on Empirical Generalization in Marketing (with Frank Bass), JMR (1978) on market segmentation and (1997) on Innovation in New Product Development and Marketing Research (1998) on The State of the Art in Quantitative Research.

Business Experience: Dr. Wind has served as an advisor to many Fortune 500 firms and a number of non-U.S. multinationals in the financial services, pharmaceuticals, information, and consumer packaged goods industries. His consulting focuses on both overall global corporate and business strategy and transformation as well as marketing strategy and especially the development of new businesses. He is a regular advisor to SEI and a member of their executive committee. In addition, he has served as an expert witness in various legal cases. Dr. Wind is a member of the advisory board of a number of start-ups including Decision Lens, LiquidHub, DreamTime Vision, Beyond Verbal, and others. Dr. Wind is a member of the advisory boards of Fung Retailing (HK) and a number of startups. He is a former director of IDT (HK), Enhance Financial Services Corporation, Contel Corporation, CASA and a number of entrepreneurial ventures.

Professional Activities: Dr. Wind is an active member of the major marketing and management science professional associations. ## Appendix 1 – The Internet Panel

Radius partnered with Prodege for all data collection for Hidden City and Non-Hidden City surveys.

Prodege provides Global Panel Access. In the US alone, Prodege has 4,397,039 million panelists over the past 6 months with a 10-15% response rate, which is industry leading.

Through its wide range of recruitment channels and offerings, Prodege ensures a diverse composition of people that represent the population of the country in which we're conducting the research.

<https://www.prodege.com/>

To ensure a representative sample for each test, we click balanced the sample. To do this, we followed these steps:

1. We ensured that the population of consumers who clicked on the survey link and had a chance to participate in the survey matched the US census on key demographics (gender, age, race, ethnicity, and region).
2. Once the population clicking on the survey was balanced, we let respondents qualify based on the screening criteria – without any additional demographic quotas. This left us with a group of completed respondents that reflects the population defined in the screener.

Our Panel

Prodege is a leading provider of people driven insights for the market research industry. Through diversified recruitment methods and a world-class consumer engagement model, we deliver a more thoughtful approach to research.

Our breakthrough model fosters member retention and ongoing participation. This brings many benefits to our clients, including delivery of re-contact surveys, longitudinal studies, in-home use tests, and ongoing research programs.

Established in 1996, MyPoints has built one of the longest running and most respected online market research panels in the industry. Through its long- standing partnerships with firms such as United Airlines, Hilton Hotels and many more, MyPoints has developed extremely strong profiling for B2B, B2C and many specialized audiences. With precise targeting capability across over 500 data points of information, MyPoints consistently delivers the highest quality results and is universally recognized as a trusted sample source.

InboxDollars proprietary panel joins Prodege and expands our global access. Founded in 2000, with expansion into the UK in 2012 and Canada in 2014, this unique group of registered members enhances the scale and breadth of our overall reach.

ySense provides us with an international respondent base. We are now able to offer stronger feasibility and overall performance in Asia, Latin America, Eastern Europe, and Africa.

Frequently Asked Questions

What steps do you take to achieve a representative sample of the target population?

Through our wide range of recruitment channels and offerings, Prodege ensures a diverse composition of people that represent the population required. We maintain a database of over 1,000 demographic and behavioral attributes that are utilized to access sample for our clients' projects. Our experienced Project Management Team starts by understanding our clients' requirements (e.g. a nationally representative sample, or a specific targeted group) and the number of responses needed, ensuring the sample plan is optimized and executed accurately.

What profiling data is held on respondents and how is it kept up-to-date? If no relevant profiling data is held, how are low incidence projects addressed?

Prodege tracks and stores thousands of demographic and behavioral attributes through several channels, including completion of a 20-question profiling survey upon joining the panel. In addition, our members participate in our Daily Poll in which we receive up to 100,000 unique responses in a day which are then appended to their profile. Behavioral data is collected through member engagement with our Search, Offers and Shopping channels to create additional data points passively. If a project requires targeting on criteria not currently captured in member profiles, we can prescreen in real-time and gather tens of thousands of responses within a matter of hours.

Member profiles are updated on an ongoing basis, with continuous refreshing to ensure data remains current. Utilizing our proprietary technology, member data is collected and stored real-time during the registration process, in follow-up surveys, and on the member website. Members can proactively update their profile at any time, or we may send out push notifications letting them know their profile is not complete, or needs updating. Additionally, profiling data collected in a survey can be sent to our database and updated real-time.

What are your quality process? Do you have in place procedures to reduce or eliminate undesired within survey behaviors, such as (a) random responding, (b) Illogical or inconsistent responding, (c) overuse of item non-response, or (d) speeding?

At Prodege, we take data quality very seriously. We have our own in-house compliance department dedicated to monitoring and eliminating fraudulent panel members. We combine industry-standard data quality solutions provided by third-party partners, along with our own proprietary techniques to ensure our panel exceeds industry standards. Observed offenders are removed from the panel and not allowed to re-register with the panel.

When we are providing survey programming for a project, we implement speeder and straightliner traps, honesty and engagement detection and review open-ended responses. Panelists who fail quality metrics are removed and/or replaced, so clients do not pay for poor quality survey completes. These members are then flagged, and monitored within our panel. Any repeat offenders are removed from our panel.

Do you have a confirmation of respondent identity procedure?
Do you have procedures to detect fraudulent respondents?

Prodege has a series of processes to handle member identity and detect fraud. To confirm respondent identities, we work with third-party industry standard data quality solutions to ensure a member is real and unique upon registration. Members are subject to a double opt-in process by initially joining, then opt-in again to join the research panel. Members cannot enroll more than once, meaning they cannot have more than one profile account in the panel database.

In addition, our in-house compliance department continuously monitors fraud and eliminates threats. This may result in removing panel members or shutting out alien technologies caught cheating the system. As part of our reward verification procedure, Prodege's compliance team has also implemented IP address and mobile phone verification. We continue to evaluate and/or implement additional data quality procedures as new capabilities emerge.

To avoid panelist duplication, we have a dedicated compliance team that continuously monitors our users to prevent fraud. To avoid duplication when supplementing with external sources, we employ proprietary and 3rd party digital fingerprinting technologies.

Introduction

The primary aim of these 37 Questions is to increase transparency and raise awareness of the key issues for researchers to consider when deciding whether an online sampling approach is fit for their purpose.

Put another way, the aim is to help researchers to ensure that what they receive meets their expectations.

The questions are also designed to introduce consistent terminology for providers to state how they maintain quality, to enable buyers to compare the services of different sample suppliers.

Company Profile

What experience does your company have in providing online samples for market research? How long have you been providing this service? Do you also provide similar services for other uses such as direct marketing? If so, what proportion of your work is for market research?

Prodege, with its proprietary panel audience through our leading consumer brands, has been delivering online sample to the market research industry for 15+ years. Through our panels, we deliver over 50 million annual survey completes to the world's leading market research firms, brands and agencies. In addition to online sample, Prodege offers Mobile Research Solutions, Access to Behavioral Data, Survey Programming, Coding, Translations, Data Processing and Data Visualization services as well as innovative and agile research solutions that make project creation & management easier from start to finish.

Prodege additionally provides omni-channel marketing solutions and access to verified purchasers to leading brands and agencies, allowing for targeting with our first party data, so they can Market to Who Matters.

Do you have staff with responsibility for developing and monitoring the performance of the sampling algorithms and related automated functions who also have knowledge and experience in this area? What sort of training in sampling techniques do you provide to your frontline staff?

Utilizing our proprietary Prodege, MyPoints, InboxDollars and ySense panel assets, we are able to offer a diversified and balanced sample blend to most accurately meet our clients' needs across hundreds of demographic and psychographic variables. We also implement technology to blend sample based on past participation frequency, recruitment source, and device platform to tailor the deliverable to fit the required target audience. These tools help ensure an accurate and consistent sample source over time. We discuss sample blending options with our clients during the bid stage, and with their approval or request we can utilize external panel partners with consistency. To avoid panelist duplication, we have a dedicated compliance team that continuously monitors our users to prevent fraud. These checks include a number of proprietary fraud prevention techniques as well as mobile verification.

Upon joining the Prodege team, we offer a detailed and engaging internal onboarding for staff to quickly get up to speed on our particular standards and practices, ensuring that they can quickly become familiar with our sampling techniques.

What other services do you offer? Do you cover sample-only, or do you offer a broad range of data collection and analysis services?

In addition to online sample through our proprietary panel assets, Prodege offers:

- Agile Research Solutions: Making project creation & management easier from start to finish, our self-serve platforms enable you to DIY or partner with our team to offset your workload.
- Mobile Research: Gain a deeper understanding behind consumer actions the moment they happen
- Research Solutions: Best in class survey programming, coding, data processing and data visualization services
- Shopper Data Solutions: Insights and sample targeting from our panel members' online and offline purchase history

What this section is about

Answers to the questions in this section will help you understand the types of sample available from different sample providers in the market and the sources they rely on. This will help you evaluate the quality of the sample being offered, whether it is suitable for measuring change over time, and whether there are any specific constraints you need to consider when using it. It will also allow you to understand whether the sample provider is drawing the sample from its own sources or aggregating sources from other providers. We recommend that you first identify the sample types being offered and then ask the relevant questions for all sources.

Broadly speaking, there are two models of sample sources and recruitment:

Panels

These are databases of potential participants who declare that they will cooperate for future data collection if selected, generally in exchange for a reward/incentive. This includes traditional access panels, co-branded panels, or opt-in databases of individuals who agreed to complete research projects and also undertake other non market research activities (watch ads, download an app, complete marketing offers, etc, also known as loyalty programmes, or rewards communities within GPT (Get paid to) sites.) Loyalty card and subscription databases are included here if there is a continuous relationship with members who understand the commitment asked of them.

Intercepts

This includes intercepts from offer walls, affiliate networks, social media or other platforms to drive traffic to a survey. Intercept is an approach where potential participants are asked to take a survey for a reward while they are engaged in another activity such as playing an online game, reading news, or some other online activity. Intercepted participants may be previously unknown to the sample provider or may have been pre-identified and profiled through a prior survey experience.

Using the broad classifications above, from what sources of online sample do you derive participants?

Through our wide range of recruitment channels and offerings, Prodege ensures a diverse composition of people that represent the population of the country in which we're conducting the research. We continue to grow our panel through recruiting new members via social media, online and offline advertising, member referrals, recommendations from influencers and acquisitions, as well as through long standing partnerships with firms such as United Airlines, Hilton Hotels and more. This diversification of recruitment sources enables Prodege to maintain a robust, proprietary panel to support client needs for consumer, B2B and other specialized audience segments.

Which of these sources are proprietary or exclusive and what is the percent share of each in the total sample provided to a buyer? (Assume proprietary to mean that the sample provider owns the asset. Assume exclusive to mean that the sample provider has an exclusive agreement to manage/provide access to sample originally collected by another entity.)

Prodege is a leading sample provider for the market research industry. Prodege utilizes its proprietary actively-managed double opt-in research panels with millions of panelists. We maintain a database of thousands of demographic and behavioral attributes that are utilized to access sample for our clients' projects. Our experienced Project Management Team starts by understanding our clients' requirements (whether a nationally representative sample, or a specific targeted group) and the number of responses needed, ensuring the sample plan is optimized and executed accurately. Through diversified recruitment methods and a world-class engagement model, we deliver a more thoughtful approach to sampling. Our breakthrough model fosters member retention and ongoing participation. This brings many benefits to our clients including high performance on re-contact surveys, longitudinal studies, in-home use tests, and ongoing research programs. Over 95% of the survey completions Prodege provides to clients are sourced from our proprietary panels.

What recruitment channels are you using for each of the sources you have described? Is the recruitment process 'open to all' or by invitation only? Are you using probabilistic methods? Are you using affiliate networks and referral programs and in what proportions? How does your use of these channels vary by geography?

Prodege offers a broad spectrum of diverse audiences to participate in surveys, including sometimes hard-to-reach people (teens, young adults, Hispanic Americans). We advertise on connected TV, radio, online, through mobile apps and continue to innovate new recruitment methods.

The recruitment process is 'open to all' through any of the marketing channels in which we're recruiting from and we encourage our members to refer people from their network to join.

What form of validation do you use in recruitment to ensure that participants are real, unique, and are who they say they are? Describe this both in terms of the practical steps you take within your own organisation and the technologies you are using. Please try to be as specific and quantify as much as you can.

Prodege employs multiple means to ensure our panelists are who they say they are. These processes include email double opt-in verification, physical address verification, device fingerprinting, mobile verification and CAPTCHA. We partner with market research quality technology firms such as Imperium to further enhance our quality measures.

Prodege's Leading Proprietary Panels

What brand (domain) and/or app are you using with proprietary sources? Summarise, by source, the proportion of sample accessing surveys by mobile app, email or other specified means.

Prodege owns and operates the leading proprietary panels of Prodege, MyPoints, InboxDollars and ySense. Surveys are accessible for all brands via email and mobile web. Prodege is the only panel that is accessible via mobile app.

Which model(s) do you offer to deliver sample? Managed service, self-serve, or API integration?

Prodege can deliver sample via our innovative DIY platform, through our Direct Managed Services team, or through approved API integrations.

If offering intercepts, or providing access to more than one source, what level of transparency do you offer over the composition of your sample (sample sources, sample providers included in the blend). Do you let buyers control which sources of sample to include in their projects, and if so how? Do you have any integration mechanisms with third-party sources offered?

Prodege offers a diversified and balanced sample blend through our proprietary panel to most accurately meet our clients' needs. Buyers that utilize our DIY platform select the sample sources for their project. Buyers that are leveraging our Direct Managed Service team are relying on our experienced Project Management team to fulfill their needs. We discuss sample blending options with our clients during the bid stage, and with their approval or request we can utilize external panel partners with consistency.

Of the sample sources you have available, how would you describe the suitability of each for different research applications? For example, Is there sample suitable for product testing or other recruit/recall situations where the buyer may need to go back again to the same sample? Is the sample suitable for shorter or longer questionnaires? For mobile-only or desktop only questionnaires? Is it suitable to recruit for communities? For online focus groups?

Our diversified recruitment methods allow for us to have a proprietary panel that is suitable for different research applications whether quantitative, qualitative or a mixed-method approach.

Sampling and Project Management

What this section is about

Answers to the questions in this section will help you understand the processes and procedures that are undertaken to provide you with a sample of participants for your survey. You should understand what biases may be inherent in, or as a result of, the approaches taken and the likely severity of those biases.

12

Briefly describe your overall process from invitation to survey completion. What steps do you take to achieve a sample that “looks like” the target population? What demographic quota controls, if any, do you recommend?

A Prodege Project Manager is responsible for managing and deploying survey invitations. Members of Prodege are invited to participate in surveys the following ways:

- An invitation is delivered via email
- A message is delivered to the member’s inbox on the panel website (login/password required)

A survey invitation template is used for consistency so the panelist knows what to expect when they receive an invitation from Prodege. The invitations include the following information pertaining to the study:

- Amount of incentive offered for participation
- Approximate amount of time it will take to complete the survey
- Opportunity to decline survey via a “Decline Survey” button located at the bottom of the invitation

To prevent bias, we do not divulge the subject of the survey or the target audience. The amount of incentive offered to the member is based on the length and/or difficulty of the survey.

Every email invitation contains opt-out information in compliance with CAN-SPAM, access information about Prodege including contact information, FAQ, our privacy policy and how to prevent survey invitations from being blocked by SPAM filters.

What profiling information do you hold on at least 80% of your panel members plus any intercepts known to you through prior contact? How does this differ by the sources you offer? How often is each of those data points updated? Can you supply these data points as appends to the data set? Do you collect this profiling information directly or is it supplied by a third party?

Prodege tracks and stores thousands of demographic and behavioral attributes through a number of channels, including completion of an introductory profiling survey upon joining the panel. All storage is compliant with international and national data laws. Behavioral data is collected through other member engagement activities. If a project requires targeting on criteria not currently captured in member profiles we can pre-screen on the fly and gather tens of thousands of responses within a matter of hours.

Member profiles are updated on an ongoing basis, with continuous refreshing to ensure data remains current. Utilizing our proprietary technology, member data is collected and stored real-time during the registration process, in follow-up surveys and on the member website. Members can proactively update their profile at any time, or we may send out notifications letting them know their profile is incomplete, or needs updating.

A more comprehensive list of attributes can be found in our panel book (provided upon request).

14

What information do you need about a project in order to provide an estimate of feasibility? What, if anything, do you do to give upper or lower boundaries around these estimates?

To provide a client with feasibility on a project, a Prodege Account Manager requires the following specifications to determine the sample size and field time for completion:

- Survey length and difficulty
- Number of completed interviews required
- Demographic criteria
- Non-demographic targeting, or behavioral criteria
- Survey quotas and sub-quotas
- Census balancing requirements
- Past participation/exclusion requirements
- Projected incidence on the population
- Fieldwork start and end dates

15

What do you do if the project proves impossible for you to complete in field? Do you inform the sample buyer as to who you would use to complete the project? In such circumstances, how do you maintain and certify third party sources/sub-contractors?

If an additional panel source is required, and upon client approval, we access our global network of preferred partners who have gone through our vetting process for quality, consistency and representivity. We have Service Level Agreements in place with preferred partners which abide by the policies of global and local organizations such as ESOMAR and Insights Association.

Do you employ a survey router or any yield management techniques? If yes, please describe how you go about allocating participants to surveys. How are potential participants asked to participate in a study? Please specify how this is done for each of the sources you offer.

Prodege does not employ an internal survey router. However, it is possible for a buyer of sample to employ a router for their project.

17

Do you set limits on the amount of time a participant can be in the router before they qualify for a survey?

As answered in question 16 we do not have a router.

18

What information about a project is given to potential participants before they choose whether to take the survey or not? How does this differ by the sources you offer?

We let participants know the approximate amount of time it will take to complete the survey, along with the incentive amount. We do not disclose any other detail about the survey (such as survey subject or target audience) so as to guard against bias.

19

Do you allow participants to choose a survey from a selection of available surveys? If so, what are they told about each survey that helps them to make that choice?

As mentioned in our response to Question 18, our panel members see the survey length and incentive amount and decide based on that information whether or not to participate in the research at any given moment in time.

What ability do you have to increase (or decrease) incentives being offered to potential participants (or sub-groups of participants) during the course of a survey? If so, can this be flagged at the participant level in the dataset?

Prodege is able to offer different incentives to different participant sub-groups and we're able to increase/decrease this over the course of a survey. We can provide participant-level incentive information when requested by our clients.

Do you measure participant satisfaction at the individual project level? If so, can you provide normative data for similar projects (by length, by type, by subject, by target group)?

Creating a positive member experience is core to everything we do at Prodege.

We actively measure panelist satisfaction both through quantitative and qualitative techniques. In addition to measuring satisfaction through metrics (activity/churn), we actively engage real-time with our members in online chats, blogs and social media to gauge satisfaction.

Prodege continuously obtains feedback (both quantitative and qualitative) from our member base. We utilize this data internally to maximize member engagement and retention.

Do you provide a debrief report about a project after it has completed? If yes, can you provide an example?

Prodege Project Managers work closely with our clients to provide ongoing status updates to ensure accurate and timely delivery based on project specifications. When requested, we provide a sample debrief report, including gross sample sent, start rate, participation and incidence rates, screening and dropout rates, a description of the fieldwork process, and so on.

Clients monitor sample performance and create reports through the survey platform they use to run the survey. When Prodege conducts programming and hosting for our clients, we can provide clients with a summary report, cross-tabulation of data, online reporting metrics, or other deliverables based on project requirements.

Data Quality and Validation

What this section is about

This section focuses on the quality of the in-survey data. In-survey data quality includes project level data validity and representativeness, survey-taking behaviours, sample blends, participant characteristics, and project level data health and audit practices.

23

How often can the same individual participate in a survey? How does this vary across your sample sources? What is the mean and maximum amount of time a person may have already been taking surveys before they entered this survey? How do you manage this?

Prodege has the ability to manage how many surveys are sent to each member, and frequently implements business rules and exclusions on behalf of our clients in order to comply with their best practices.

24

What data do you maintain on individual participants such as recent participation history, date(s) of entry, source/channel, etc? Are you able to supply buyers with a project analysis of such individual level data? Are you able to append such data points to your participant records?

Our proprietary panel and management system maintains individual respondent-level data within our panel database and allows us to automatically update the member records including: join date, emails opened, survey activity, profiling data, frequency and types of engagement with our panel sites, and incentives earned.

We are able to append select data points to participant records and share with clients when requested.

Please describe your procedures for confirmation of participant identity at the project level. Please describe these procedures as they are implemented at the point of entry to a survey or router.

Prodege has a series of processes to handle member identity and detect fraud. To confirm panelist identities, Prodege works with third-party industry-standard data quality solutions to ensure a member is real and unique upon registration. Members are subject to a double opt-in process when initially joining our member communities.

Members cannot enroll more than once, meaning they cannot have more than one profile account in the panel database. In addition, our in-house compliance department continuously monitors fraud and eliminates threats. This may result in removing panel members or shutting out alien technologies caught attempting to cheat the system. As part of our reward verification procedure, Prodege's compliance team has also implemented IP address, mobile phone and physical address verification.

To avoid panelist duplication, we have a dedicated compliance team that continuously monitors our users to prevent fraud. These checks include a number of proprietary fraud prevention techniques as well as mobile verification. To avoid duplication when supplementing with external sources, we employ proprietary and 3rd party digital fingerprinting technologies.

How do you manage source consistency and blend at the project level? With regard to trackers, how do you ensure that the nature and composition of sample sources remain the same over time? Do you have reports on blends and sources that can be provided to buyers? Can source be appended to the participant data records?

Utilizing our proprietary Prodege, MyPoints, InboxDollars and ySense panel assets, we are able to offer a diversified and balanced sample blend to most accurately meet our clients' needs across hundreds of demographic and sociographic variables.

We also implement technology to blend sample based on past participation frequency, recruitment source and device platform to tailor the deliverable to fit the required target audience. These tools help ensure an accurate and consistent sample source over time. We discuss sample blending options with our clients during the bid stage, and with their approval or request we can utilize external panel partners with consistency.

We can provide reports and append select information to participant records as requested by clients.

27

Please describe your participant/member quality tracking, along with any health metrics you maintain on members/participants, and how those metrics are used to invite, track, quarantine, and block people from entering the platform, router, or a survey. What processes do you have in place to compare profiled and known data to in-survey responses?

Prodege tracks member quality on an ongoing basis through a variety of proprietary metrics with data collected through technology plus human-led audits. We gather behavioral data as well as responses to Quality Audit Surveys which our members complete regularly and then take action to quarantine or block members based on the outcomes of this analysis. Profiled data is compared to known data provided through 3rd party resources such as the USPS.

28

For work where you program, host, and deliver the survey data, what processes do you have in place to reduce or eliminate undesired in-survey behaviours, such as

- (a) random responding,
- (b) Illogical or inconsistent responding,
- (c) overuse of item non response (e.g., "Don't Know")
- (d) inaccurate or inconsistent responding,
- (e) incomplete responding, or
- (f) too rapid survey completion?

At Prodege, we take data quality very seriously. We have our own in-house compliance department dedicated to monitoring and eliminating fraudulent panel members and undesired behaviors.

We use industry-standard data quality solutions provided by third-party partners, along with our own proprietary techniques, to ensure our panel exceeds industry standards. Because our panels originate from the success of our rewards programs, we are vigilant about detecting fraud. Observed offenders are removed from the panel and not allowed to re-register with the panel.

When we are providing survey programming for a project, we implement speeder and straightliner traps, honesty and engagement detection and review open-ended responses. Panelists who fail quality metrics are removed and/or replaced, so clients do not pay for poor quality survey completes. These members are then flagged, and monitored within our panel. Any repeat offenders are removed from our panel.

Policies and Compliance

What this section is about

Sample providers, buyers, and their clients are subject to data protection and related information security requirements imposed by data protection laws and regulations. In addition, they may be subject to laws and regulations that may impact incentives paid to participants.

These laws and regulations vary by jurisdiction with different laws and regulations applying in different countries or states within countries, and are generally interpreted based on where the participant resides.

Applicable data protection laws and regulations include, but are not limited to: the Act on the Protection of Personal Information or APPI (Japan); the Australian Privacy Act (Australia); the California Consumer Protection Act or CCPA (state of California in the United States); the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act or COPPA (United States); the Data Protection Act (United Kingdom); amendments regarding data localisation requirements to the Data Protection Act (Russian Federation); the General Data Protection Law (Brazil); the EU General Data Protection Regulation or EU-GDPR (EU/ EEA); the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act or HIPAA (United States); the Graham-Leach Bliley Act or GLBA (United States); and PIPEDA (Canada). AB 2257 (the state of California in the United States) is an example of law and regulation related to employment which may impact incentives paid to participants.

Information security frameworks and standards include, but are not limited to COBIT, HITRUST, ISO 27001, the NIST Cybersecurity Framework and SOC 2.

29

Please provide the link to your participant privacy notice (sometimes referred to as a privacy policy) as well as a summary of the key concepts it addresses. (Note: If your company uses different privacy notices for different products or services, please provide an example relevant to the products or services covered in your response to this question).

Privacy is an integral part of our well-established online business. Our Privacy Policy is provided to all panelists at sign-up and repeatedly thereafter.

Prodege's Privacy Policy (and a link to the video that describes it):

<https://www.prodege.com/privacy/>

A few key concepts include: Cookies and Tracking Technologies, Sharing, Opt-In/Opt-Out, Children's Privacy, Security, Location of Processing and Applicable Law.

30

How do you comply with key data protection laws and regulations that apply in the various jurisdictions in which you operate? How do you address requirements regarding consent or other legal bases for the processing of personal data? How do you address requirements for data breach response, cross-border transfer, and data retention? Have you appointed a data protection officer?

Data privacy and security is the top priority for Prodege, and we know that member data is one of our most valuable assets. Production systems are housed in secure data centers, with multiple layers of network and data protection. Access to these systems is provided on a least-privilege basis and includes the use of 2nd factor authentication. Access is logged and regularly audited. We have a range of security tools implemented to prevent, detect and mitigate unwanted behavior. Data is backed up and stored on machines with restricted access.

When appropriate, Prodege includes a data transfer rider that serves as an addendum to contracts with our survey partners.

Prodege continually enhances its Security Policies. These policies address data retention and incident response.

Further information about Prodege's data privacy and protection is available by emailing our designated Data Protection Officer at dpo@prodege.com.

31

How can participants provide, manage and revise consent for the processing of their personal data? What support channels do you provide for participants? In your response, please address the sample sources you wholly own, as well as those owned by other parties to whom you provide access.

Consent for the collection and processing of personal data has long been required by market research industry codes. It is also explicitly required by some data protection laws and regulations. Some data protection laws and regulations, including EU-GDPR and CCPA as examples, also provide for access rights for participants to correct, update, or delete their data. Implementation of a participant support channel is also required by ISO 20252 (ISO 20252:2019: Market, Opinion and Social Research, Including Insights and Data Analytics - Vocabulary and Service Requirements).

Prodege complies with all legal requirements.

32

How do you track and comply with other applicable laws and regulations, such as those that might impact the incentives paid to participants?

Prodege has designated resources, utilizing tools, technology, and trained legal staff to continuously monitor new regulations and changes to existing laws that impact every aspect of our business.

33

What is your approach to collecting and processing the personal data of children and young people? Do you adhere to standards and guidelines provided by ESOMAR or GRBN member associations? How do you comply with applicable data protection laws and regulations?

In each market Prodege operates, we comply with applicable laws and ESOMAR association guidelines as relates to the protection of children's privacy. For example, in the US, Prodege complies with the United States Children's Online Privacy Protection Act (COPPA) which applies to young people under age 13.

Prodege only partners with trusted Market Research companies. Our research team works closely with clients to QA each survey, in advance of fielding, to ensure studies are appropriate for young respondents.

34

Do you implement “data protection by design” (sometimes referred to as “privacy by design”) in your systems and processes? If so, please describe how.

Yes. Our staff includes full time certified security and privacy professionals, who are engaged in all phases of our operations: design, development, deployment, monitoring, etc. We follow NIST Cybersecurity Framework Guidelines (e.g. least privilege, zero trust), and use world-class tools for tracking and monitoring. Our data is hosted in hardened, secure data centers with a full set of compliance certs: Soc 1, 2 and 3, ISO 27001, etc.

35

What are the key elements of your information security compliance program? Please specify the framework(s) or auditing procedure(s) you comply with or certify to. Does your program include an asset-based risk assessment and internal audit process?

As mentioned above, our data is hosted in hardened, secure data centers with a full set of compliance certs: Soc 1, 2 and 3, ISO 27001, etc. We follow NIST Cybersecurity Framework guidelines, and have 24/7 smart network monitoring, with external oversight and escalation. All systems, tools and policies are under constant review and revision to optimize our efficiency, detection and response capabilities.

36

Do you certify to or comply with a quality framework such as ISO 20252?

We are not certified to ISO 20252. However we maintain high standards of security and privacy compliance throughout the organization.

Metrics

What this section is about

This section lists common sample and data health metrics. Reviewing metrics periodically can serve as the basis for a conversation with sample providers about consistency and reliability, as well as whether the sample is appropriate for the population and business question being examined. Unexpected or unexplained shifts in metrics may also indicate the potential for bias or error. While not all of these metrics are required and there are no benchmarks on the “right answers,” providing transparency over time will create a meaningful dialogue about quality and utility.

37

Which of the following are you able to provide to buyers, in aggregate and by country and source? Please include a link or attach a file of a sample report for each of the metrics you use.

01. Average qualifying or completion rate, trended by month
02. Percent of paid completes rejected per month/project, trended by month
03. Percent of members/accounts removed/quarantined, trended by month
04. Percent of paid completes from 0-3 months tenure, trended by month
05. Percent of paid completes from smartphones, trended by month
06. Percent of paid completes from owned/branded member relationships versus intercept participants, trended by month
07. Average number of dispositions (survey attempts, screenouts, and completes) per member, trended by month (potentially by cohort)
08. Average number of paid completes per member, trended by month (potentially by cohort)
09. Active unique participants in the last 30 days
10. Active unique 18-24 male participants in the last 30 days
11. Maximum feasibility in a specific country with nat rep quotas, seven days in field, 100% incidence, 10-minute interview
12. Percent of quotas that reached full quota at time of delivery, trended by month

Prodege can provide this information to clients upon request.

Glossary

For the purpose of this document these terms have the following specific meanings:

Affiliate partner (or Affiliate network) means a network of communities with which a sample provider has a relationship to direct intercept traffic to their surveys.

API (application programming interface) means a set of definitions and protocols for building software applications capable of accessing and exchanging data.

Blending means the practice of combining multiple, heterogeneous sample sources with the aim of achieving a more consistent or more representative sample.

Children means individuals for whom permission to participate in research must be obtained from a parent, legal guardian, or responsible adult. Definitions of the age of a child vary substantially and are set by national laws and self-regulatory codes. In the absence of a national definition, a child is defined as being 12 and under and a “young person” as aged 13 to 17.

Completion rate means the number of participants who fully complete the survey divided by the number of participants who start the survey.

Consent means freely given and informed indication of agreement by a person to the collection and processing of his/her personal data. Note that the specific requirements for consent will vary by jurisdiction.

Exclusion means excluding a potential participant from a research project based on their previous participation in a research project involving the same or similar product/ service category and/or methodology.

Fraudulent participant means a participant who deliberately misrepresents their identity, profiling information, or responses, including organisations that use bots to impersonate participants.

Health metrics means measures of quantitative assessment commonly used for comparing and tracking performance or production over time. In this context, health metrics refers to quantitative data used to track stability or changes in the sample a provider offers, and the metrics suggested are based on data that has been previously known to impact quality over time.

Loyalty programme means an arrangement in which customers of a company (or group of companies) are rewarded for purchases made with these companies. Rewards are normally given in a currency that can be spent at those companies (or their chosen partners).

Paid completes means interviews/surveys that are delivered and accepted by a client, are included in the final dataset, and for which the sample provider receives payment.

Panel member (or simply member) means an individual recruited from a documented source who has provided profile data and appropriate information for validation of identity, given explicit consent to participate in research according to the terms and conditions of panel membership, and has not opted out.

Participant (sometimes call a participant or data subject) means a person or organisation from whom or about whom data is collected for research.

Personal data (sometimes referred to as personally identifiable information or PII) means any information relating to a natural living person that can be used to identify an individual, for example by reference to direct identifiers (such as a name, specific geographic location, telephone number, picture, sound, or video recording) or indirectly by reference to an individual's physical, physiological, mental, economic, cultural or social characteristics.

Profiling information means descriptive characteristics of a panel member.

Quarantined members means individuals who have broken some set of quality assessment protocols that result in them being either temporarily or permanently suspended from participating in future research activities with the company that quarantines them. Referral program means a process whereby a panel offers its existing panellists the opportunity to gain rewards by referring family, friends and colleagues (or visitors of their site) to join the panel.

Representativeness means the degree to which a sample reflects the target population being studied. A representative sample is one in which the distribution of important characteristics is approximately the same as in the target population.

Rewards community (within Get Paid To (or GPT) sites) means databases or panels of individuals who may undertake non-research activities (watch ads, download an app, complete marketing offers etc) usually in exchange for a reward, but who also agree to take part in research projects.

Router means an online software application that screens incoming research participants and then uses those results to assign participants to one of multiple available research projects. A router can also offer participants additional screeners and surveys after screener qualification failure or survey completion.

Sample provider means a service provider responsible for the provision and management of online samples from relevant sources including panels, intercepts, email lists, etc.

Survey attempts means the number of times the same individual clicked a link or entered into a survey environment in an attempt to complete a survey.

Third Party Sources means sources that the sample provider does not directly run or control.

Yield management means a variable allocation strategy through which outcomes are maximised by matching supply with demand.

About Us

A cutting-edge marketing and consumer insights platform, Prodege has charted a course of innovation in the evolving technology landscape by helping leading brands, marketers, and agencies uncover the answers to their business questions, acquire new customers, increase revenue, and drive brand loyalty & product adoption. Bolstered by a major investment by Great Hill Partners in the fourth quarter of 2021 and strategic acquisitions of Pollfish, BitBurst & AdGate Media in 2022, Prodege looks forward to more growth and innovation to empower our partners to gather meaningful, rich insights and better market to their target audiences.

Hidden City Stimuli:

Stimuli 1 for Skiplagged (Cell 1)

The screenshot shows the Skiplagged website interface. The search parameters are: One Way, 1 Traveler, John Wayne Orange County Intl. to Miami Intl, Miami, Florida, on Aug 3, 2024. The search results are displayed under the heading "Please select your flight". The first result is highlighted with a red box. It shows a 5h nonstop flight from SNA to MIA, with a total cost of $254 and a price of $173. The flight is operated by Delta. The second result shows a 16h 1 stop flight from SNA to MIA via PHX, with a total cost of $314 and a price of $181. The third result shows a 9h 1 stop flight from SNA to MIA via PHX, with a total cost of $273 and a price of $190. The fourth result shows a 14h 1 stop flight from SNA to MIA via PHX, with a total cost of $314 and a price of $196. The fifth result shows a 7h 1 stop flight from SNA to MIA via DEN, with a total cost of $211. The sixth result shows an 8h 1 stop flight from SNA to MIA via IAH, with a total cost of $211. The seventh result shows a 9h 1 stop flight from SNA to MIA via DEN, with a total cost of $211.

Important information about your flight!

This is a hidden city ticket!
That means you get out in Miami (MIA) and skip the following flight(s).

Backpack only
We recommend only bringing a backpack that can fit under the seat in front of you. Anything larger risks getting checked at the gate, and all checked bags will end up in Nashville!

☒ I understand that I cannot check my bag(s)

Bad weather
In rare times of irregular operations such as bad weather, your itinerary may change at the discretion of the airline. If that happens, ask to be changed to a similar itinerary!

Angry airlines
Airlines don't like when you miss flights to save money so don't do this often.

☒ I have read and understood these notes.

Stimuli 2 for Skiplagged (Cell 1)

| SKIPLAGGED SAYS...   | AMERICAN AIRLINES SAYS...  |
|--|--|
| What is Skiplagging or "hidden-city" flying? Skiplagging or hidden-city flying is where you get off at the layover rather than the final destination. For example, a flight from New York to Orlando might be $250, but a similar flight from New York to Dallas with a layover in Orlando might be $130. If you're going to Orlando, we'll show you both flights. If you choose the cheaper one, you get off the plane at the layover (Orlando) rather than going to the final ticketed destination (Dallas). This is perfectly legal and the savings can be significant, but there are some things to be aware of: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Backpack only – We recommend only bringing a backpack that can fit under the seat in front of you. Anything larger risks getting checked at the gate, and all checked bags will end up in Dallas (final ticketed destination)!</li> <li>• Bring your passport for international flights (even if you're not going all the way to the final destination). Some carriers require a passport to board the plane.</li> <li>• You may need a visa for international flights. This depends on the country that's the final destination. In some cases, all you need is a passport, but you may also need a visa for some countries.</li> <li>• Don't associate a frequent flyer account – If you do, the airline might invalidate any miles you've accrued with them.</li> <li>• Some airlines may require proof of a return ticket during check-in. If this happens to you, just buy a refundable</li> </ul> | We may not let you fly (temporarily or permanently) for any reason, including if you...fail to comply with American Airlines rules or policies. Prohibited booking practices Reservations made to exploit or circumvent fare and ticket rules are prohibited. Examples include (but are not limited to): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Purchasing a ticket without intending to fly all flights to gain lower fares (hidden city ticketing)</li> </ul> If we find evidence that you or your agent are using a prohibited practice, we reserve the right to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Cancel any unused part of the ticket</li> <li>• Refuse to let the passenger fly and check bags</li> <li>• Not refund an otherwise refundable ticket</li> <li>• Charge you for what the ticket would have cost</li> </ul> Ticket Validity Your ticket is valid only when: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Travel is to/from the cities on your ticket and in your trip record</li> </ul> Your ticket is not valid when: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• We find that the ticket was bought using an exploitative practice</li> </ul> Violation of applicable rules...is subject to...forfeiture of any and all AAdvantage® Rewards and Benefits in a member's account, as well as termination of the account and the member's future participation. |

|--|--|
| return ticket directly from the airline and cancel it ASAP after boarding. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Do not overuse hidden-city itineraries. Do not fly hidden-city on the same route with the same airline dozens of times within a short time frame.</li><li>• In rare times of irregular operations such as bad weather, your itinerary may change at the discretion of the airline (2% chance).</li><li>• You might upset the airline, so don't do this often.</li></ul> |  |

|---|--|
| What is Skiplagging or "hidden-city" flying? Skiplagging or hidden-city flying is where you get off at the layover rather than the final destination. For example, a flight from New York to Orlando might be $250, but a similar flight from New York to Dallas with a layover in Orlando might be $130. If you're going to Orlando, we'll show you both flights. If you choose the cheaper one, you get off the plane at the layover (Orlando) rather than going to the final ticketed destination (Dallas). | We may not let you fly (temporarily or permanently) for any reason, including if you...fail to comply with American Airlines rules or policies. Prohibited booking practices Reservations made to exploit or circumvent fare and ticket rules are prohibited. Examples include (but are not limited to): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Purchasing a ticket without intending to fly all flights to gain lower fares (hidden city ticketing)</li> </ul> |

| This is perfectly legal and the savings can be significant, but there are some things to be aware of: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Backpack only – We recommend only bringing a backpack that can fit under the seat in front of you. Anything larger risks getting checked at the gate, and all checked bags will end up in Dallas (final ticketed destination)!</li> <li>• Bring your passport for international flights (even if you're not going all the way to the final destination). Some carriers require a passport to board the plane.</li> <li>• You may need a visa for international flights. This depends on the country that's the final destination. In some cases, all you need is a passport, but you may also need a visa for some countries.</li> <li>• Don't associate a frequent flyer account – If you do, the airline might invalidate any miles you've accrued with them.</li> <li>• Some airlines may require proof of a return ticket during check-in. If this happens to you, just buy a refundable return ticket directly from the airline and cancel it ASAP after boarding.</li> <li>• Do not overuse hidden-city itineraries. Do not fly hidden-city on the same route with the same airline dozens of times within a short time frame.</li> <li>• In rare times of irregular operations such as bad weather, your itinerary may change at the discretion of the airline (2% chance).</li> <li>• You might upset the airline, so don't do this often.</li> </ul> | If we find evidence that you or your agent are using a prohibited practice, we reserve the right to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Cancel any unused part of the ticket</li> <li>• Refuse to let the passenger fly and check bags</li> <li>• Not refund an otherwise refundable ticket</li> <li>• Charge you for what the ticket would have cost</li> </ul> Ticket Validity Your ticket is valid only when: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Travel is to/from the cities on your ticket and in your trip record</li> </ul> Your ticket is not valid when: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• We find that the ticket was bought using an exploitative practice</li> </ul> Violation of applicable rules...is subject to...forfeiture of any and all AAdvantage® Rewards and Benefits in a member's account, as well as termination of the account and the member's future participation. |

INTRO

Thank you for your interest in today's survey.

We value your opinions, and all of your answers will be held in the strictest confidence, so do not be afraid to answer each question honestly. Remember, there are no right or wrong answers.

While you are completing the survey, we ask that you do not look at windows, tabs, or applications on any device. Please do not search the Internet or ask others for help regarding any questions. We are only interested in your own opinions. If you don't know the answer, that is okay, please select "Don't know" and move forward to the next question. Do not guess your answer.

Now, please review the conditions associated with the Skiplagged offering versus American Airlines' policies. Please review this information the way that you normally do when reviewing and selecting airline flights online.

|--|---|
| What is skiplagging or "hidden-city" flying? Skiplagging or hidden-city flying is where you get off at the layover rather than the final destination. For example, a flight from New York to Orlando might be $250, but a similar flight from New York to Dallas with a layover in Orlando might be $130. If you're going to Orlando, we'll show you both flights. If you choose the cheaper one, you get off the plane at the layover (Orlando) rather than going to the final ticketed destination (Dallas). This is perfectly legal and the savings can be significant, but there are some things to be aware of: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Backpack only — We recommend only bringing a backpack that can fit under the seat in front of you. Anything larger risks getting checked at the gate, and all checked bags will end up in Dallas (final ticketed destination).</li> <li>• Bring your passport for international flights (even if you're not going all the way to the final destination). Some carriers require a passport to board the plane.</li> <li>• You may need a visa for international flights. This depends on the country that's the final destination. In some cases, all you need is a passport, but you may also need a visa for some countries.</li> <li>• Don't associate a frequent flyer account — If you do, the airline might invalidate any miles you've accrued with them.</li> <li>• Some airlines may require proof of a return ticket during check-in. If this happens to you, just buy a refundable return ticket directly from the airline and cancel it ASAP after boarding.</li> <li>• Do not overuse hidden-city itineraries. Do not fly hidden-city on the same route with the same airline dozens of times within a short time frame.</li> <li>• In rare times of irregular operations such as bad weather, your itinerary may change at the discretion of the airline (2% chance).</li> <li>• You might upset the airline, so don't do this often.</li> </ul> | We may not let you fly (temporarily or permanently) for any reason, including if you...fail to comply with American Airlines rules or policies. Prohibited booking practicesReservations made to exploit or circumvent fare and ticket rules are prohibited. | SKIPLAGGED SAYS...  | AMERICAN AIRLINES SAYS...   |
|---|---|
| What is skiplagging or "hidden-city" flying? Skiplagging or hidden-city flying is where you get off at the layover rather than the final destination. For example, a flight from New York to Orlando might be $250, but a similar flight from New York to Dallas with a layover in Orlando might be $130. If you're going to Orlando, we'll show you both flights. If you choose the cheaper one, you get off the plane at the layover (Orlando) rather than going to the final ticketed destination (Dallas). This is perfectly legal and the savings can be significant, but there are some things to be aware of: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Backpack only — We recommend only bringing a backpack that can fit under the seat in front of you. Anything larger risks getting checked at the gate, and all checked bags will end up in Dallas (final ticketed destination)!.</li> <li>• Bring your passport for international flights (even if you're not going all the way to the final destination). Some carriers require a passport to board the plane.</li> <li>• You may need a visa for international flights. This depends on the country that's the final destination. In some cases, all you need is a passport, but you may also need a visa for some countries.</li> <li>• Don't associate a frequent flyer account — If you do, the airline might invalidate any miles you've accrued with them.</li> <li>• Some airlines may require proof of a return ticket during check-in. If this happens to you, just buy a refundable return ticket directly from the airline and cancel it ASAP after boarding.</li> <li>• Do not overuse hidden-city itineraries. Do not fly hidden-city on the same route with the same airline dozens of times within a short time frame.</li> <li>• In rare times of irregular operations such as bad weather, your itinerary may change at the discretion of the airline (2% chance).</li> <li>• You might upset the airline, so don't do this often.</li> </ul> | We may not let you fly (temporarily or permanently) for any reason, including if you...fail to comply with American Airlines rules or policies. Prohibited booking practicesReservations made to exploit or circumvent fare and ticket rules are prohibited. Examples include (but are not limited to): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Purchasing a ticket without intending to fly all flights to gain lower fares (hidden city ticketing)</li> </ul> If we find evidence that you or your agent are using a prohibited practice, we reserve the right to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Cancel any unused part of the ticket</li> <li>• Refuse to let the passenger fly and check bags</li> <li>• Not refund an otherwise refundable ticket</li> <li>• Charge you for what the ticket would have cost</li> </ul> Ticket ValidityYour ticket is valid only when: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Travel is to/from the cities on your ticket and in your trip record</li> </ul> Your ticket is not valid when: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• We find that the ticket was bought using an exploitative practice</li> </ul> Violation of applicable rules...is subject to...forfeiture of any and all AAdvantage® Rewards and Benefits in a member's account, as well as termination of the account and the member's future participation. |

What do you believe is the relationship between Expedia and the airline?

Expedia is an authorized agent of the airline

I believe that the airlines may provide discounts or deals to expedia in exchange for new customers and i think they authorize them to do this

Based on your understanding of the Expedia offerings, please select the option you believe is correct.

|---|---|
| Relative ExpenseBuying tickets through Expedia is cheaper than buying directly from the airline | Like stated earlier I believe these booking sites are given discounts because it gives an incentive for customers to purchase the tickets from them. |

| Associated RiskThe option offered by Expedia carries no risk   | You will get on the flight like you purchased and if you have any issue they have great customer service from my past experience-------- |

Reflecting on the Expedia offering and everything you know about them how do you feel about buying your next airline ticket from them?

I would 100% consider them, I prefer Priceline at this point but Expedia is good too. I like the bundling aspect especially

Don't know

Comparing the results you got from Expedia and from the American Airlines website, how do you feel about the Expedia offering?

I like the Expedia option just as much. Even though it is the same price I was able to see other airlines and compare those prices instead of going directly to the airline flight and having to only see American Airlines and cant compare

Don't know

How likely would you be to consider buying your next airline ticket from Expedia?

Definitely would consider buying my next airline tickets from Expedia

I do not use ticketing site just for the discount, I like to see other airlines and flight options offered all on one single site to compare and contrast.

Reflecting on the Expedia offering and everything you know about them how do you feel about buying your next airline ticket from them?

I'd consider it, assuming I would get a better deal than directly on the airline's site. Next time I travel, I am extremely likely to compare prices with this site.

The site seems valid and legit for purchasing tickets as a presumably discounted rate. If all goes well I am likely to refer a friend to check them out as well.

Comparing the results you got from Expedia and from the American Airlines website, how do you feel about the Expedia offering?

They are the same pricing so am unsure what Expedia offers in difference.

The fees and pricing are the same.

How likely would you be to consider buying your next airline ticket from Expedia?

May or may not consider buying my next airline tickets from Expedia

Based on the pictures, I am unsure the difference between booking on Expedia and directly through the airline.

How would you describe the offering on this website to a friend?

I would describe the offering on this website as a place to go to book her flights and that there is no cancellation fee as long as it's done 24 hours ahead of scheduled flight.

I would also tell my friend that she can earn OneKeyCash on top of airline miles by booking on this website.

Does the company that operates this website have a business connection or association with another company, or do you not know?

Yes, it has a business connection or association with another company

Which other company does the company operating this website have a business connection or association with?

OneKeyCash

I say this because the website is owned by Expedia and the other website mentioned is OneKeyCash which I assume is owned by another company that is associated with Expedia.

Does the company that operates this website require permission or authorization from any other company, or do you not know?

Yes, it requires permission or authorization from another company

If "Yes" to requires permission or authorization from any other company

From which company is permission or authorization required?

OneKeyCash

I say this because I need to make an account with them in order to use it.

For what do they need to get permission or authorization?

They need permission to authorize that I have booked a flight via Expedia.

I say this because there is a "Sign in" link.

What do you believe is the relationship between Expedia and the airline?

Expedia is an authorized agent of the airline

I say this because Expedia wouldn't be able to sell flights without the permission of the airline which most people probably go through the actual airlines website to book a flight.

Based on your understanding of the Expedia offerings, please select the option you believe is correct.

|---|---|
| Relative ExpenseBuying tickets through Expedia is cheaper than buying directly from the airline | I say this because Expedia attempts to get you the best price possible for a flight to where you want to go.             |
| Additional FeesExpedia charges an additional fee on top of the airline's total ticket cost.     | I believe that the tax on a $230.70 flight is less than $32.40 which tells me that there may be a hidden fee involved. |

If respondent believes additional fees are added

|---|--|
| Reasonable ChargeI believe the fee Expedia charges for its services is reasonable | I say this because I believe the fee is near $20 and if it's saving me far more than $20 on my flight ticket then it's a fair fee to pay. |

| Authorized Agent with Additional Fare AccessExpedia is an authorized travel agency with access to fares I could not access via the airline | I say this because I believe that Expedia has to be authorized to be able to sell flights for this particular airline.  |
| Ticket ValidityA ticket bought through Expedia is a valid ticket   | I say this because in order to sell a plane ticket that Expedia needs to be authorized by an airline company to do so.  |
| Associated RiskThe option offered by Expedia carries no risk   | I say this because there are no fees if cancelled within 24 hours of flight booked and no fees if my plans change and I need to change my flight.---------- |

Reflecting on the Expedia offering and everything you know about them how do you feel about buying your next airline ticket from them?

I feel that I may need to check out their website the next time I want to book a flight to see how much money that I can save by booking through them.

Comparing the results you got from Expedia and from the American Airlines website, how do you feel about the Expedia offering?

I would go with Expedia being that I'd earn flight points from them along with the other site that I mentioned earlier.

Don't know

How likely would you be to consider buying your next airline ticket from Expedia?

Probably would consider buying my next airline tickets from Expedia

I'm all about saving money and joining reward programs. If I can receive more points by going through Expedia, I will.

Depends on the tickets and his expensive they are. Some airlines are not seating rewards points when you book externally, so the savings would have to off set that.

I'll give this site a peek in the future for comparison purposes.

Comparing the results you got from Skiplagged and from the American Airlines website, how do you feel about the Skiplagged offering?

As a frequent intensional traveler who relies on frequent flyer miles, I probably wouldn't risk this, at least nor on my preferred airline.

Th at helps me understand the backpack rule earlier.

How likely would you be to consider buying your next airline ticket from Skiplagged?

Probably would not consider buying my next airline tickets from Skiplagged

AI and video devalues would make it very easy for airlines to prove you were using hidden city booking and penalize you.
